Computers for Christmas?

An updated version of the Twelve Days of Christmas was presented by the Wilmington High School Vocal Ensemble during their concert Tuesday night at Barrows Auditorium. The traditional gifts in the song were traded in for a brand new Apple II E, and various computer accessories.

On Thursday evening, an instrumental concert will feature the Elementary, Intermediate and High School bands, plus the high school Jazz Band. The concert will be at 7:30 p.m.

Police appointments

Two new patrolmen have been appointed to the Wilmington Police Department on a permanent intermittent status, and a patrolman has been promoted to sergeant.

The new patrolmen are Thomas A. Miller of 41 Park St. and Robert B. Richter of 21 Parker St.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said that three additional officers would be named soon, with some working full time, but others working on an as-needed basis.

The new sergeant is Joseph Duffy of Burnap Street.

Lights on!

Tree lighting ceremonies were held on Wilmington Common Saturday night, with members of the Wilmington High School Band taking part. New lights were added this year, making the common an especially beautiful sight.

Six injured in three-car accident

Six persons were injured in a three-car accident on Lowell Street Sunday night.

The accident occurred at 9:20 p.m. near Stelio's Restaurant when a car driven by Richard Steen collided nearly head-on with a another car while attempting to pass a third, which was also hit.

Steen and the occupants of the third car were all seriously injured. The Life-Flight helicopter was used to transport Steen to the Mass. General Hospital.

Driver of the second car was John D. McElhiney, 30, of 13 Ash St., Woburn. He is president of the Woburn City Council and son of the Woburn chief of police. The passengers in his car were Mark Barry, 29, of Wood Street, Woburn, and Stephen Fossey, also 29, of 11 Summer Ave., Woburn. McElhiney was taken to Winchester Hospital, Barry to Choate, and Fossey to the Leahy Clinic.

In the third car were William and Carole Doucette of 4 Carline Drive, Billerica. They were both taken to Winchester Hospital, treated and released. He sustained two broken ribs. He is the brother of Robert Doucette, chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen.

According to police reports, Steen's car was carrying a quantity of alcoholic beverages, which he was said to have won the previous day in a raffle. Several bottles were broken, but the seals were intact.

No charges have been filed pending completion of investigation of the accident.

Cyclist dies after crash

Injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident claimed the life of a 30 year old man on Saturday.

James E. Thompson of 183 Scudder Ave. Hyannis was involved in an accident at the intersection of High Street and Middlesex Avenue in North Wilmington on Wednesday, Dec. 4 at 5:44 p.m. His 1980 Kawasaki motorcycle collided with a Volvo station wagon driven by Diane C. Massa, 30, of 398 Highland Ave., Winchester.

According to police reports, the motorcycle and the car both emerged from Middlesex Avenue. The Volvo was in the process of turning left; the motorcycle was attempting to go straight ahead to High Street. The motorcycle apparently hit the Volvo broadside at a high rate of speed, causing the car to overturn.

Officer David McCue happened upon the scene very soon after the accident. Thompson was lying in the road, with Terry Gustus of Burlington Avenue attempting to aid him. Diane Massa was trapped in her overturned car.

Thompson was taken to the Regional Health Center in Wilmington with serious head and neck injuries. He was transferred to the Mass. General Hospital, where he died three days later.

Electric rate hearing set

The long awaited public hearing by the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities (DPU) regarding service and rate charges of the Reading Municipal Light Department is now scheduled to be held in Boston on December 27 and December 30. The hearings will be in the Saltonstall Building, on Cambridge Street. A decision can be expected some time in March.

So the directors of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce were told, on Tuesday afternoon. The directors were told that a new cost study has been made for Reading Light. That cost study is said to have shown that Wilmington industries were being over charged about $300,000 a year.

Studies by a consultant to the Chamber of Commerce had previously reported that the overcharge amounted to over $1 million a year.

The directors voted in favor of what was termed "extensive support" for further studies by their consultant.

Larz

from sea captain to newspaper publisher

by Arlene Surprenant
Captain Larz Neilson of High Street is a town monument almost as enduring as the centuries old Harnden Tavern he writes about. He, along with his newspaper the Wilmington Town Crier, have long been a permanent fixture in our town.

Thatch of white hair, friendly grin, lined face and excess energy, Larz is the Town Crier's publisher. Not surprisingly to those who know him, he is still going strong at 74 years of age.

Larz was born of immigrant parents in North Woburn. His father, Peter, came from Denmark and was a self-employed stone mason who served on the Wilmington School Committee and the Board of Library Trustees. His mother, Caroline, emigrated from Sweden at age 16 and was a correspondent for a Swedish/English newspaper. All three moved to Wilmington when Larz was a year old, a fact which may disqualify him from being labeled "a real townie."

The family located near Silver Lake on Glen Road, in a stone and block house which Peter Neilson built. The family also included two daughters, Sylvia and Bernice. Some Wilmington residents recall Sylvia as a Latin teacher in Wilmington High School in the 1930's.

The sea has always held a special fascination for Larz. So it is not surprising that he decided to enter the Mass. Maritime Academy even before graduation from the Wilmington school system. He trained on the sailing ship Nantucket, graduated from the Academy in 1930, and all told, spent 20 years at sea.

According to his son, Fred, five days after Pearl Harbor, Larz married Elizabeth Norton at a time when "everything was going crazy and nobody knew what was going to happen."

Perhaps one of Larz's proudest moments was when he was made a captain during World War II. After all, asks Fred, how many 30 year-olds are put in charge of ships carrying thousands of troops?

"He should be proud," adds his son, with his own touch of pride.

In the ensuing years, Larz and Elizabeth reared three sons: the eldest, Peter, who is a senior technical writer for Prime Computer in Framingham; Fred (Larz), who is the Town Crier's editor and an outdoor enthusiast; and Stu, the youngest, who handles the Town Crier's advertising, and is captain of the Wilmington Minutemen. They also have two grandchildren: Kristin, age 13, and Erik, age nine, children of Stu and his wife Lynda.

Though Larz holds the distinction of being the last official postmaster from North Wilmington, his first love is and continues to be the Town Crier.

"This is what keeps him ticking," says Fred. Larz usually puts in a 12 hour day at his office on Middlesex Avenue.

Many visitors to the Town Crier office find him hunched over an ancient typewriter as he pounds his way through a story on the Casket Lady, Otis Gowing, or Henny Penny for the following week's edition. Or they run into him carrying overflowing wastebaskets into the dumpster outside. On Wednesday and Thursday noon they don't run into him at all, as he usually attends Rotary Club meetings in Wilmington and Tewksbury. Occasionally, he will take a break and treat visitors and office staff alike to a snappy rendition of a French song or a Danish poem, complete with appropriate gestures.

To a close observer, it is obvious Larz is equally at home in his office cubbyhole as he is on the deck of a ship.

However, it should be noted, he got where he is today, through a lot of hard work, determination, and a willingness to learn the newspaper business from the bottom up.

At the end of the war, Larz worked briefly as a correspondent for the Lowell Sun. In 1951, he became editor of the Wilmington Crusader, owned by Stanley Bocko of Billerica. In 1955, Larz split with Bocko and rented the North Wilmington railroad station, with the intention of starting his own paper.

Early editions of the Town Crier were printed on 50-pound offset stock. They were tabloid size and contained eight pages.

"The first issue was typically late coming off the press," recalls Fred, who, with his brother Peter, delivered copies of the Town Crier to town subscribers.

Though "it was never a profit maker," he adds, Larz did manage to pay his bills. All money matters are handled by his wife Elizabeth, who serves as "captive treasurer" and payroll clerk.

Larz himself sheds some light on his reasons for going it alone.

"There was no other decent paper around at that time," he says, in a reminiscent mood. When asked how he managed without any formal newspaper background, he grins and assures you he "floundered around for 25 years."

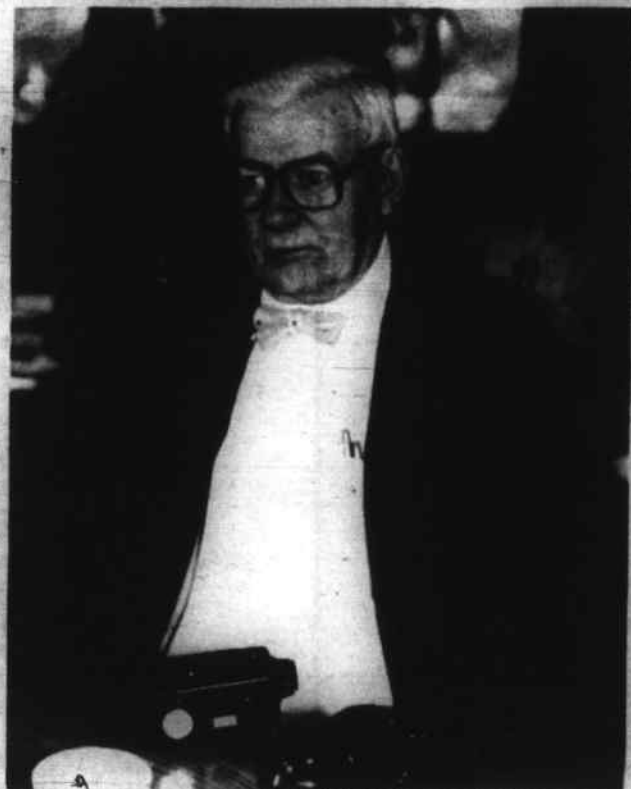

Even with such a colorful background, it is the man himself, and not the trappings, who usually commands your attention.

Larz is a teller of tales with a bit of the actor thrown in.

He likes nothing better than regaling listeners with old sea stories and little known facts about Wilmington's past. He tells the story of the rabbi who sought a meeting place aboard his ship during the war and ended up interrupting a card game in a meat locker. He talks, with knowledge, about the Swain Sisters, the late lamented Walker School, the old Middlesex Canal - all stories which crop up in the Crier under Larz's by-line and copyright.

Larz is known around town for his sharp memory and amazing recall ability.

If someone misses a point at town meeting, for example, you can be sure Larz will supply the missing fact. If someone comes into his office, most likely he will pin down the visitor's name and place of residence. And it's not unusual to listen, in awe, as Larz reels off the names of the first class of students in the Walker School or some other pertinent information he's committed to memory.

According to employee Betty Spahl, one thing Larz enjoys is "finding something wrong" with a story in a rival paper or information in other printed matter. He seems to have all the facts at his fingertips when, in reality, he spends hours doing research in the library or in his own extensive collection of books.

Larz is also blessed with a gift of languages, something many people are not aware of.

Between school courses and extensive travel to 52 countries during his days at sea, Larz picked up a working knowledge of French, Italian, Norwegian, Swedish and some Danish. Just recently, he picked up another language he is careful to never use. What's that? you ask intrigued. Profane, he tells you, with a glint in his eye.

Of all his interests, though, backyard gardening and delving into the history of Wilmington and the Civil War give him the most joy.

Larz has a credible reputation as an organic gardener and "mushroom micrologist." His annual search for the morel mushroom is well documented in the Town Crier each spring. And any morels he finds are quickly turned into tasty dishes by certain friends.

In a testimonial roast for Larz in 1980, his penchant for gardening was revealed in a humorous way when Dr. Henry Foster of the Charles River Breeding Lab gifted him with a lifetime supply of rat manure for his garden.

An ongoing interest in history "kind of came with the territory," says Fred. Once Larz began researching articles for the Town Crier, he became totally engrossed in documenting old buildings and those whose lives were a part of them.

Larz is also intrigued by America's Civil War period. Fred, who inherited a bit of the storyteller himself, tells of the time his father attended a national news convention in Virginia. While there, Larz was determined to bring home a relic from a Civil War battlefield. And he did, Fred says with a broad grin. Being a true Civil War buff, Larz triumphantly bore home his memento: a single honest-to-goodness mushroom.

Looking ahead, Larz hopes to organize all his stories and thoughts into a possible book on Wilmington's past. For now, those plans are on hold, awaiting more time and perhaps more private office space to complete his work.

When you engage Larz in conversation, or vice versa as usually happens, it's not hard to see why the board of selectmen honored him with a Captain Larz Neilson Day in 1980 and named him Wilmington town historian. For who better than this proven townie, with his love of Wilmington and his curiosity about her past, deserves that honor more?

Tewksbury looking to add to police patrols with temporary reorganization

Selectmen Tuesday agreed with police union officials that budget cuts have created potentially hazardous conditions for on-duty police officers. The board has asked Police Chief John Sullivan to meet with them Monday at 7:30 p.m. to come up with a temporary reorganization plan that will put more officers on the road.

Currently, police staffing falls below what union officials feel are safe levels due to a reduced overtime account. The superior officers union and patrolmen's association have told selectmen that a "hazardous condition has escalated to an intolerable level." That intolerable level occurs when officers out sick, injured, on vacation, or attending mandated training sessions are not replaced, leaving vacant slots on several shifts.

There have been times when the already understaffed seven man shift has gone as low as four, with only two patrolmen on the road, they say. Normally, there are three cruisers on the road, two two-men patrols and a single-man patrol, with an officer in charge and an untrained dispatcher in the station.

Lt. John Mackey told selectmen there were only three patrolmen on the road the day two armed robberies occurred within hours of each other and that there were only two one-man patrol cars on the street on December 1.

Selectmen agreed the understaffed shifts pose safety problems for the policemen and protection problems for the town's residents. But, they say the only way to rectify the problem is to increase budget authority.

However, the board will look into ways to increase the number of patrolmen on the road without having to spend more money.

Mackey and Patrolmen's Association President Peter Amari told selectmen the conditions have been going slowly downhill. Mackey said the police department has slowly seen its overtime account trimmed from $185,000 a year in 1981 to only $55,000 this year. Most of this year's overtime account is already spent on mandated training sessions, and emergency fill-ins.

"When we first started getting the budget cuts, we accepted the fact that we had to work with sometimes five people on the road. We accepted it when it went to four. We didn't like it, but we accepted it. Three and two (men on the road) is totally unreasonable. We can't do it. There are citizens in this town or police officers that are going to get hurt," said Mackey.

"Other towns, other police departments are not operating this close to the bone," he added.

Gerardine Walsh promoted

The executive committee of State Street Bank and Trust Company has announced the promotion of Gerardine A. Walsh of 37 West St., Wilmington to vice president in the Personal Trust Division of Personal Financial Services.

Ms. Walsh joined the bank in 1969 as a senior secretary in the Personal Trust Division. In 1973 she became a trust administrator, and in 1976 was named supervisor of Word Processing. In 1980 Walsh was promoted to trust officer and in 1984 to senior trust officer.

Saying the chief's decision to lay off school crossing guards as of January 1 in order to leave more funds in the budget to cover patrolmen's overtime has some people wondering about children's safety, Mackey said, "At least I now when a child crosses a street there is an alternative. A parent can be there to cross him. It may not be the best alternative, but it's an alternative."

"What alternative do I have...or do any of the other Lts. have to send someone to an armed robbery by himself? Who are we sending to back him up? There isn't anybody else unless you call another community," he added.

Patrolmen Association President Peter Amari said he is afraid that "two men on the road and two men in the office looks like it's going to be commonplace and not the exception."

There are 26 square miles in town, Amari said, and to split that area between two single-man patrols could cause a maximum of about 15 minutes response time should one of the patrolmen require back up assistance and would leave one area of town virtually unprotected.

"We've been lucky. This town has been real, real lucky so far," Amari said.

Both Amari and Mackey told the board they proposed a "stop gap" measure for increasing on-road patrols to the chief. The proposal is to put the department's liaison officer and take two of the department's three detectives from the criminal bureau and place them on the road for a 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. shift. "It's not the best solution, but it's a temporary solution," Mackey said.

The plan would leave only three detectives to man a busy criminal bureau in shifts from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Selectman Chairman Tom Girard commented, "It's almost like your taking something away and I have this gut feeling once you take it away you have a hard time getting it back." He felt the only way to solve the problem was to rebuild the department's budget. Leaving undermanned shifts places patrolmen's and the public's safety in jeopardy and leaves the town open to civil suits should something that could have been prevented by a fully manned shift happen on an undermanned shift. Girard said the town has got to "pay it out now and have better protection or pay it out later in a law suit" settlement.

"One or two men on the road in a town this size is ridiculous," said Selectman Bill Hallisey in suggesting the board meet with Chief Sullivan to devise a plan to "get as many men back out on the road as we can."

Renovated

Major alterations have taken place at 355 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington in the building owned by the YCK Group. A new facade was applied to the building, giving it a modern look. Interior alterations include the creation of new corporate headquarters for the YCK Group, and preparations for leasing out a large section of the building. The entire construction project was managed by Rikel Construction, a tenant in the building. The building was originally built in the early 1960's, and for many years housed Photon, Inc.

Opening ceremonies Sunday for YCK building

On Sunday, December 15, Carl M. Youngman, Les Charm and Gene Kohn, partners of the YCK Group, will host an open house for 200 employees, families and friends to celebrate the grand opening of a new corporate facility. country. The companies' franchise outlets are located in major regional shopping centers.

Members of the Class of 1965, WHS have no excuse for not knowing where their classmates live, and what they do.

Fran DeLisle, now Fran Fay of Andover organized the class reunion, which was held at the Sons of Italy Hall on November 29. She listed every person who responded to her questions, marital status, children, address, what they do, and where they have been in their travels. It was quite an endeavor.

Tewksbury Golden Age Club

A happy birthday is wished to Wallace Decker, Edith Lamb, Mary Nugent, Ciril Field, Louise Barron, Marie Carolan, Raymond LaFortune, Andy Lawrie, Gertrude Bellevue, Lester Snook, Minnie Cailler and Gertrude MacDonald.

Get well wishes are sent to all those members who are hospitalized and to those who are not feeling well.

It is with sorrow that we announce that we have lost our oldest member, Joseph Giannetto, who would have been 99 years old this March. The Golden Age Club (GAC) memorial service was held for Mr. Giannetto on Wednesday, December 11 at the Tewksbury Funeral Home at 2:30 p.m. Condolences are extended to Mr. Giannetto's family.

Our condolences are also extended to Ann Coviello and her family on the loss of her brother and to the Carews and St. Hilaire who have had several deaths in their families over the past months.

As of December 1, 1985, any and all membership renewals fall under the GAC bylaw, Article 6, Section 3 which was voted on in August of this year. This means that after six months grace period, those members who have not paid their dues are dropped from the club rolls. After this period and as of December 1, 1985, any person renewing his or her dues must pay the annual dues of $3.00 plus a reinstatement fee of $2.00.

This fact has been noted in numerous news columns since August. The ruling is not meant to discriminate against delinquent members, but to enforce dues payments and accurate record keeping. One important fact in having one's dues paid is that club benefits cannot be rendered unless a member is in good standing.

Payment in full is now due for those who have signed up for the gala Irish St. Patrick's Day party at the Beacon on March 13, 1986. For more details call Denis DeDeo at 851-7690 or 851-5949.

We wish to thank all those members who attended the Tuesday monthly meeting, all those who generously donated to the raffle table and Santa for dropping by and wishing all us "older kids" a Merry Christmas.

A special thank you is extended to Mary Greene for her generosity in making slippers for all our lifetime members, and to those officers who will be delivering Christmas gifts to the lifetime members.

There are several New Year's Eve party tickets still available. Those interested may contact the GAC president.

At our January meeting we will have a representative from Elder Affairs and a representative from each of the HMO's servicing our area. More information will follow concerning this subject.

A safe and pleasant week is wished to all.

Tewksbury appeals board appeals to fincom for funds

The Tewksbury Board of Appeals made an appeal of their own last Thursday before the finance committee. Board Chairman Lou Carciofi was successful in his bid to replenish a nearly depleted operating account.

The number of appeals heard by the Tewksbury Board of Appeals has skyrocketed in recent months. On December 2 the board heard a record number 38 cases.

Chairman Lou Carciofi told the Tewksbury Finance Committee on December 5 that one cause for the record increase is because Tewksbury families with land beside their homes are trying to sell that land. Prices in Tewksbury are very high at this time.

The result of these efforts has put the appeals board into a bind, with respect to its budget. By state law, there must be public hearings, with all cases to be heard to be advertised in the newspaper in advance. There is also necessary clerical work to be done, with respect to the hearings.

Carciofi and other appeals board members estimated a possible deficit in the appeals board budget of over $5,000 by June 30, if the number of appeals cases continues.

The November 25 special town meeting had cut the board's operating account by $150.

Carciofi said in a letter to selectmen that the large number of cases heard since July had depleted the $3000 operating budget granted at the May Annual Town Meeting to $217.19 as of December 1.

Cutting the $150 would leave the board with only $67.19 with which to complete the fiscal year, which ends June 30. The board, Carciofi did note, receives a $100 application fee from people seeking zoning bylaw variances on their land. That application fee goes into the general treasury, not back into the appeals board budget, however.

The fincom, after hearing Carciofi's explanation, agreed last Thursday to transfer $3,000 from their reserve fund to the appeals board.

Tewksbury revaluation complete, new assessments available

A state mandated property revaluation has recently been completed in Tewksbury and has been reviewed and approved by the state revenue department. The new assessment values are in effect for fiscal year 1986 and reflect the condition properties were in as of January 1, 1985.

Residents wishing to learn the new assessments on their property can call the assessor's office at 851-3028 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday thru Friday. Those residents wishing to review their new assessments can request an appointment with assessors:

A state law requires the town's property to be revalued once every three years. The assessors undertook that revaluation last year using a state sanctioned property factor process. They tracked the sales of property during 1984 and calculated the percentage increases in property values.

The results showed that residential property appreciated in value by an average of 38 percent while commercial and industrial property appreciated by an average of 29 percent. Those percentages were used to calculate new assessments.

Tewksbury youth arrested three times in one week

A 16-year-old male juvenile from Tewksbury was arrested three separate times last week. The youth was first arrested by Sgt. Paul Johnson on December 2 at 2:45 p.m. on the power of an outstanding default warrant issued for his arrest from Lowell District Court on an assault and battery charge.

The youth was again arrested by Sgt. Dennis Peterson, Officer Alfred Donovan and Officer Roger Tanguay on December 4 at 1:56 a.m. and was charged with operating after the revocation of a license and operating an unregistered and uninsured vehicle. The arrest was made after police on routine patrol stopped the vehicle the youth was allegedly driving on Kennedy Road.

The youth was arrested for the third time on December 5 at 11:45 a.m. when Officer James Luz stopped the vehicle he was allegedly driving on Highlandview Road and charged him with operating after the revocation of a license and operating an unregistered and uninsured vehicle.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

On Friday, November 8, the Wilmington Wildcats took on the Lowell football team in Lowell. The Wildcats lost that night, but Wilmington almost lost something more important, the lives of three flag twirlers in the Wildcat Band. Many people did not know what happened that night except that Wilmington had lost a good football game.

That night was cold and damp, but the team and band were in high spirits. Suddenly from the stands where the band was sitting, we heard screams, and then more screams. No one knew what had happened and that panicked everyone.

Information was limited to us because of the panic situation. Finally, after about five minutes after the fall, we were informed that three flag twirlers had fallen and they were o.k. to the extent that they were at least talking, but nobody was quite sure of the injuries they had sustained.

Despite the accident, the band still had to prepare for their halftime show. We went on to do one of our best shows ever. Aterward, there were more questions and some tears. At the end of the show, Mr. Gillis came over to talk to us and to tell us that the girls were o.k. and they were still getting x-rayed.

The bus ride home was a quiet one, many close friends of the girls still crying, but knowing that all that could be done for the girls was being done.

When we arrived at the high school, we were very happy to see one of the girls waiting for us. Flooded with questions, she told us the good news we all wanted to hear - the girls were going to be o.k. There was a wonderful feeling among the band which cannot be described. A night which could have turned into a nightmare was going to come out alright.

We, the band members, would like to thank everyone who helped out that night - especially Mr. Gillis, Ms. Mette, Miss Littlefield, Miss Kalil, Miss Boudreau, and the many other people and parents who kept our spirits high at a time when we needed it the most.

Thank you,

Tewksbury school committee cuts buses, trims fuel fund, leaves 4 posts open

The Tewksbury School Committee last Wednesday voted 3-1 to approve a budget cut package which, in part, modifies public and private school transportation routes and trims the school's fuel allowance fund by $50,000.

The entire package reduces the school department's expenses by the $616,353 figure mandated at the November 25 Special Town Meeting that trimmed the town's overall fiscal 1986 town budget in order to bring it under the limits imposed by Prop. 2 1/2.

The budget cut package also reduces the amount set aside for teachers' anticipated raises by $289,824, leaving a balance of $326,450. Other salary operating accounts were cut by a total of $32,529.

No layoffs are expected under the adopted plan, but four vacated staff positions will not be replaced this year, saving $59,077.

Chairperson Dr. Carol Wareing assembled the package from a list of 17 items that School Superintendent John Wynn presented to the school committee as possible areas that could be considered for cuts. Dr. Wareing selected six items from the list and added the fuel account reduction.

Some of the items passed over for cuts included proposals to cut athletics, consolidate kindergarten and elementary classes and to reduce clerical, nursing and custodial staff.

Operating account cuts include reductions in both private and public school bus transportation.

Four private school buses will be eliminated, leaving seven buses which will follow modified route plans so they can accommodate more students.

The seven buses will operate from a central "pick-up," and "drop-off" point at Saint Williams Church on Main Street.

According to Assistant Superintendent for Business John Ryan, 461 of the 560 private school students currently bused will continue to be transported.

Public school transportation will also be modified by eliminating late afternoon and athletic practice buses and combining five Individually Guided Education (IGE) student buses, carrying 5th and 6th grade students, with the junior high students' buses for a total savings of $13,500.

Also cut from the operating account was $22,100 from the Special Education "Out of District," account which is a fund for students whose educational plan calls for their attending special classes outside of Tewksbury and the food service subsidy account which was cut by $20,000.

An additional $50,000 will be saved in the fuel account by having schools cut back on their energy consumption and/or not topping off the fuel tanks in the spring.

The four vacated positions that the school committee decided not to replace are Supervisor of Custodians ($17,583), Guidance Counselor ($16,610), Psychologist ($18,904) and an audio-visual aide ($5,980).

An anticipated balance of $98,000 in the teachers' salary account, due to an adjusted staff count, is also figured into the budget cuts.

Committeeman James Sullivan, who voted against the package, said he did so primarily because he objected to modifying private school bus transportation. He said other items should have been looked at more closely.

The committee meeting began in a rally-like spirit, as Dr. Wareing led a packed auditorium of teachers and citizens in a cheer for public education.

Dr. Wareing thanked Albert Kinnon for his proposal at the special town meeting and said that it was now time to start the rebuilding process using their belief in public education as the guiding principle.

With that, discussion on the budget cut items began.

The main focus on the general discussion was whether or not to eliminate private school busing from the school department's budget.

The majority of the crowd was in favor of eliminating the service.

A long-time resident of Tewksbury whose children all attended Tewksbury public schools said private school busing's time was over since the town could not afford it any longer. He said the situation was "ridiculous," because "we are taking things away from the kids in this town to send kids out of town."

A spokeswoman for a Parent Advisory Council (PAC) read a statement asking the school committee to eliminate private school busing and to negotiate a fair contract with the teachers.

A resident who defended private school busing said he was, "appalled," that the town wanted to bus only students who went to school in Tewksbury. He said, "all children of the town have a right to be bused," because they are residents of the town.

Another resident read a letter signed by 60 private school students from Tewksbury asking the school committee not to eliminate their bus service.

Dr. Wareing responded to the various comments saying she would support modifications to private school busing but would not eliminate it in the middle of the school year because it would disrupt both the public and private school students education.

In response to one resident's suggestion, Committeeman Louis Carciofi said that the best avenue for private school busing was probably to take it out of the school department's budget and make it a separate line item at town meeting.

The meeting ended when the committee went into executive session to discuss collective bargaining strategies for the teachers and aides contract negotiations.

Marketing students collect food for senior citizens

Students in the Wilmington High School Marketing and Distributive Education program, known as DECA, are involved in a civic consciousness project directly related to the senior citizens of their town. They wanted to get as many students and teachers involved as possible, so they got busy. They decorated a box for each homeroom, distributed them throughout the building, and had the student body fill them with gifts of food, clothing, or items of their choice.

The boxes were then returned to the DECA room 208A on Nov. 26, and stored for sorting the following week. The items were then sorted and wrapped, along with 50 pounds of fruit, candy and nuts, which were made into fruit baskets.

The items were then delivered to senior citizens on Dec. 5 by the DECA advisor, Mrs. Mary Theil.

This program is one of several that is open to students in the Marketing and Distributive Education classes and club. Seniors are engaged in researching a project on senior citizens and their place in the community. They are also preparing a 50-page research report on their civic consciousness project, which will be entered in state competition in March with the Distributive Ed Clubs of America.

John Porter, teacher at Tewksbury High

The usual loud and active halls of Tewksbury Memorial High School have been silent as students and faculty try to cope with the loss of a much loved colleague and teacher, John Porter.

Porter, who taught algebra and trigonometry in the Tewksbury School system for the past 18 years, died in an automobile accident in Andover on December 5, shortly after the end of the school day.

Porter, 41, was on his way home from school Thursday when the car he was driving in the north lane of Route 125 in Andover crossed the median line striking another car head on. The operator of the other car, Mary Sexton, 54, of Arlington, also died from injuries received in the accident. State Police from the Andover barracks investigated the crash.

Porter began his teaching career at the Tewksbury Junior High School in 1967 and moved to the high school when ninth graders were transferred to that building a few years ago. He also coached freshman baseball for several years, had coached the high school golf team and a girls softball team in Lawrence, the city where he lived.

Porter, born and raised in Methuen, owned a small jewelry business in Salisbury beach, New Hampshire, where he worked during the summer months. He leaves his wife Andrea and two daughters, Tracey and Wendy.

John Porter will be remembered by students and faculty alike for his kindness, sincerity, and concern for his students. A student of his said he had an enlightening sense of humor, and a strong ability to put everyone around him at ease. Roger Pilat, a colleague and close friend of Porter, described him as a "very caring, open man."

Students and faculty are not only suffering the loss of an excellent teacher in the Tewksbury School system, they are suffering the loss of a very dear friend, according to those who knew him. His kindness and good nature will never be forgotten by Tewksbury, despite the passage of time.

Tewksbury teachers are presently considering organizing a scholarship fund in his memory.

Ruth L. Wynacht

Mrs. Ruth L. (Flagg) Wynacht, a resident of Pawtucket Blvd., Lowell, died at Lowell General Hospital November 26 after a brief illness.

Born in Chelsea, 84 years ago, Mrs. Wynacht had previously lived on Faulkner Avenue, Wilmington for many years.

Mrs. Wynacht was the widow of Leamon Wynacht and the aunt of Paul H. Flagg of Wilmington, Arthur Flagg of Tewksbury, Valerie Lindin of Woburn and Pearl Theran of Exeter, N.H.

She worked in the billing department of Diamond Crystal in Wilmington until her retirement.

Funeral services were held at the Nichols Funeral Home, Wilmington on Friday, Nov. 29 at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Lawrence O'Brien of the Wilmington United Methodist Church officiating. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Clayton E. Buck

Clayton E. Buck, the last man of the Wilmington Buck family to live on Woburn Street passed away December 5 at Tewksbury Hospital after a lengthy illness. A lifelong resident, he was the son of the late Albert and Florence (Stevens) Buck. He was 87 years old.

His father was one of the many Wilmington men who sold meat in the Boston suburbs, from butcher wagons, about a century ago. Twenty to 30 white covered wagons would leave Wilmington early every morning, on such a sales mission.

Clayton was a direct descendant of the original Buck family (William and Roger Buck), which settled in what is now Wilmington in 1671, on what was The Andover Road. That road was later to become Woburn Street.

In the days before World War I Clayton went to work for Buster (Ernest) Eames, a Wilmington milk dealer. Buster is believed to have had the first milk delivery system in Wilmington.

When Buster Eames became superintendent of the Wildwood Cemetery, about a dozen years later he brought Clayton over to the new job. Clayton stayed for many years.

In 1948 Clayton Buck became a stationary engineer, and went to work for the Wilmington Water Department, at the pumping station at Brown's crossing. It was always a pleasant place to visit, in spite of the noise from the diesels.

He retired September 30, 1976, at the age of 78. He still lived alone, as he always had, in his home on Woburn Street. He became ill about two years ago and transferred to the Tewksbury Hospital where he died December 5.

A life member of friendship Lodge, A.F. & A.M., he had been a member for over 50 years.

Clayton Buck is survived by six nieces and nephews: Daniel Cullivan of Winchester; Mrs. Gladys Cannon of California; Mrs. Eleanor Briggs of Maine; Mrs. Marion Simmons of Connecticut; E. Stanley Buck of Exeter and R. Irving Buck of Pelham, New Hampshire.

Funeral services were held at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington at 10 a.m. December 9 with the Rev. William Murdoch of the Wilmington Congregational Church officiating. Burial was in the Wildwood Cemetery.

Tewksbury completes dream season

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

The dream season is over, and for the Tewksbury High School Redmen, it ended perfectly. Coach Bob Aylward and his program have reached the heights, the epitome of what high school football is all about following Saturday's pulsating and impressive 24-13 Division II Super Bowl victory over Bridgewater-Raynham at Sullivan Stadium.

The Redmen (11-0-0) defeated all potential takers in 1985, finally dominating (yet still somehow managing to make the contest exciting) a Bridgewater-Raynham club that was on a 9-0 unbeaten roll of its' own.

The Redmen had staggered off to a nervous 6-0 halftime advantage and were clinging to an 18-13 lead with 1:37 left in the game thanks to just two big Bridgewater-Raynham plays—a 64 yard inside bolt by John Schlutz that cut the margin to 12-7 in the third quarter and a 45 yard Schlutz interception return for another TD that sliced the gap to 18-13 in the final stanza.

Yet through it all, the mistakes that were recovered from and the typically risky Redmen play calls that worked, you knew that this team would find a way to win, for they are true champions. The first Merrimack Valley Conference team to win a Division II Super Bowl since Andover in 1974 and 1975. The best team in Tewksbury High School's football history. This is no longer idle boast, for these Redmen proved it all right out there on the football field.

In the end, Aylward was ever gracious in tossing out the bouquets after accepting the championship plaque, turning to the Tewksbury crowd and crossing himself while on one knee.

"The guys from the Merrimack Valley Conference were terrific in helping us to prepare for this game," noted Aylward in answering how the Redmen defense (61 points allowed all season) stuffed the vaunted B-R wishbone attack.

Offensively, the Redmen were confident from the outset that they could put points on the scoreboard. "We made some adjustments at halftime, but overall we just had to go out and do the things that we do best," offered Aylward.

Tewksbury had every right to be brimming with confidence with senior quarterback Rob Aylward at the helm. The cool and confident Aylward fired three touchdown passes and scored the first TMHS Super Bowl TD himself after recovering from a shaky first half start.

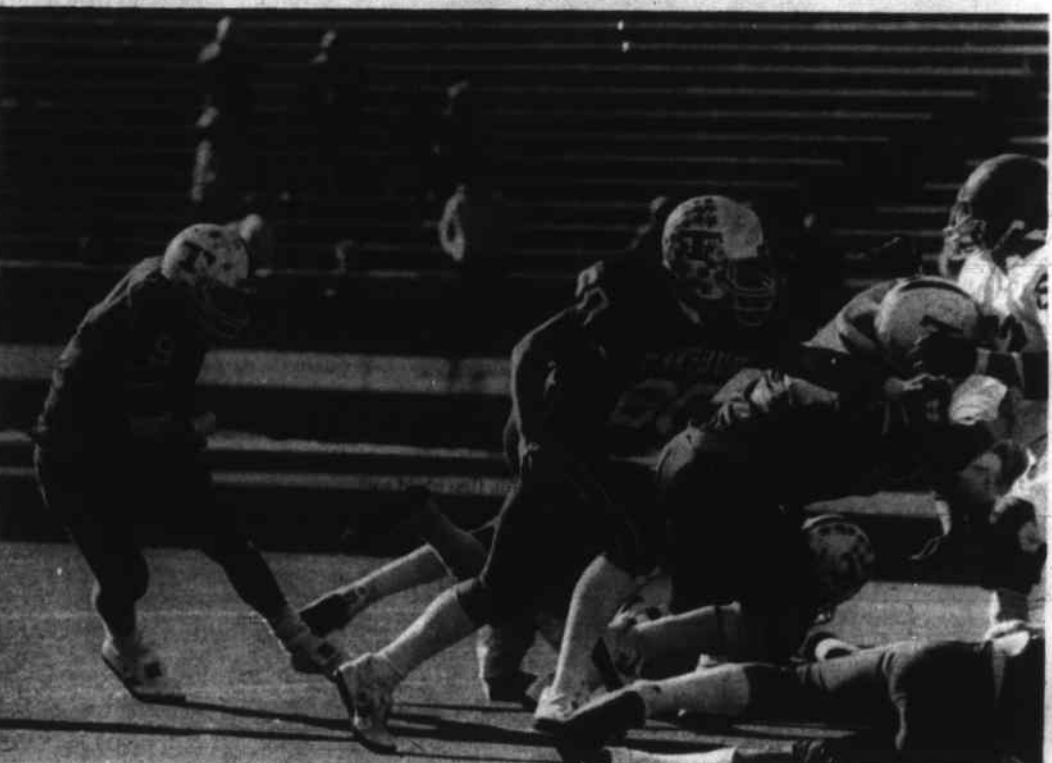

Rob misfired on his first five passes of the game, going 3 for 9 for just 32 yards in the opening half. Aylward never lost his cool however, leading the way in the second half with 277 yards of total Tewksbury offense.

Rob once again had plenty of support, most notably from senior tight end Shawn Blades who latched on to TD passes of nine and eight yards. His first score sent TMHS up 12-0 in the third quarter, while his second TD gave the Redmen an 18-7 third quarter cushion. Quarterback Aylward had earlier given TMHS a 6-0 halftime edge Tewksbury High School junior running back Kenn Coviello cuts behind the blocks of guards Dave French and Mike Healey. The Redmen ground game was instrumental in their Super Bowl victory at Sullivan Stadium Saturday.

Aylward straight ahead

Before getting to that typical Tewksbury excitement, a big key to this final victory was the TMHS ability to run inside behind the blocks of tackles Mike Fitzpatrick and Scott Fay; guards Dave French and Mike Healey; and center Jay Kelley. Juniors Kenn Coviello and Brian Aylward combined for 140 yards rushing, and when the Redmen wanted to kill the clock, they did just that with clockwork precision.

"They (BR) looked outstanding defensively on film," noted Aylward afterward. "I didn't expect that we'd be able to run as well as we did inside. That really is a credit to the job that our kids did inside."

And when the Redmen needed the big reception to sandwich that inside pounding, there was the three year starter Blades to carry the big play load. "Shawn has been around for three years, and he and Rob have been throwing to each other since they've been able to walk," noted Eddie Blades' neighbor.

The Redmen offense set up another roller coaster of a finale when Schlutz intercepted a Rob Aylward middle screen and returned it 45 yards for the touchdown late in the game.

On their ensuing possession, the Redmen were facing a fourth down situation near midfield when they were whistled down for an illegal procedure penalty. On the play, coach Aylward noticed that a split out wide Joe Vecchi was just that—wide open with no BR player intending to cover him on the 'potential' punt.

"Frank's (BR coach Almeida) attempt was that he thought he could beat us inside the wing and block Rob's kick," offered Aylward, who immediately called his son to the sideline while the officials walked off the penalty.

"I just told him, hey Robbie, if Vecchi has got no coverage when they line up again, dump the ball to him," said the TMHS coach.

And before you could say 'perfect season', BR came out to cover the punt again with no coverage on Vecchi, and Aylward calmly floated the ball to his receiver, who made one slithery cut at the 20 enroute to a 49 yard game breaker of a touchdown.

This may have been the final blow to Bridgewater-Raynham's chances, but a number a big plays had contributed to a steady TMHS march to victory.

Vecchi and senior linebacker Bud MacAllister each had fumble recoveries, with MacAllister recovering on the final TMHS kickoff of the game to spell the end for BR. Tim Boudreau and Vecchi each had key interceptions. Senior tackle Bill Brothers thwarted a two point conversion attempt after BR's final TD, while senior defensive end Chris McHardy came up with a big quarterback sack to stuff a Bridgewater-Raynham drive.

Then there were the key plays that helped to protect the lead. The stops made by the swarming TMHS special teams are included here, as is Mike Healey's nifty pickup of a BR onside kick with the clock winding down in the fourth quarter.

The truth be told, Tewksbury dominated. The statistics don't lie. The Redmen led in first downs (16-8), total yards (351-192), rushing yards (170-117), passing yards (181-75) and scrimmage plays (67-44).

The champions indeed know that they worked to get here however. "We had three wins a year ago, and believe me, it's easier to talk after you win," noted Aylward while patiently answering questions in a circle of reporters.

In the end, the Redmen did what they do best. Their multiple offense clicked at the games' timely points throughout the season, and their defense, anchored by seniors Bob Dunlay, Bill Brothers, Al Piccolo, Chris McHardy, Bud MacAllister, Dave Lindsey and Joe Vecchi, was coached in a technique and executed it perfectly.

The offense will lose the quarterback to graduation along with Blades, Vecchi and guard Mike Healey. What's scary is that the bulk (I don't mean Fitz) of this team returns for 1986.

Tewksbury could just start dreaming again come September.

Wildlife art exhibit by Laurel Ford

"Grey Squirrel" a five-time award winning pastel by Laurel Ford, well known Wilmington wildlife artist, is one of the many paintings currently on display at the new Arlington Trust, located in the Wilmington Plaza.

The exhibit includes a variety of wild and domesticated animal portraits. Ford likes to paint directly from nature. Her backyard feeding station attracts an endless supply of subjects and is the inspiration for many of her paintings in the exhibit, including "Blue Mischief," a detailed work of eastern bluejays.

As a member of the Reading Art Association, associate member of the North Shore and Rockport Art Associations, Ford has exhibited widely and won many awards. Her paintings have twice been reproduced in the American Mutual Art Calendar which enjoys a nation wide distribution.

Ford has exhibited with the North Suburban Art Association, Andover Art in the Park, and most recently accepted as an entrant in the Federal Duck Stamp competition held by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

The exhibit is dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Jane Curley. The public is welcome.

Chapter I PAC elects officers

The fall orientation meeting of the Wilmington Chapter I PAC was held Thursday, Nov. 21 at 9:30 a.m. at the Shawsheen School.

Mrs. Brenda Squire, director of Chapter I Reading, discussed the purpose and operation of Wilmington's Chapter I Program, and individual conferences with the Chapter I teachers were held.

The following officers were elected for 1985-86:

Paulette Kalagher, chairperson; Deborah Bartnick, vice chairperson; Susan Farkas, secretary; Patricia Fenton, comptroller; Marilyn Hardy, newsletter chairperson.

Initial plans were discussed for the winter Make and Take meeting. Further details will be forthcoming.

Lifestyle Changes for Weight Control (LCWC) is a unique and personal 20-week learning experience for adults committed to change and weight loss. It is a behavioral weight loss and lifestyle management course for overweight adults.

Conducted by a nutritionist/registered dietitian, LCWC is a comprehensive program involving individual diagnosis of problem eating behaviors, learning new habits and skills in an open, positive and supportive group environment. Other faculty members include a health educator, physical therapist, family counselor and aerobic dance instructor.

The group meets on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 for behavioral modification of eating and exercise habits, nutrition education, stress management, self-image, self-awareness and relaxation training.

Each week, blood pressures and weights are checked. Not only have participants lost weight, but they have significantly lowered their blood pressure and blood sugar level, and in some cases, diabetics and hypertensives have been able to reduce their dose of medication.

A three-part payment plan is available for the course fee (Master Card, Visa and American Express will be accepted) which includes materials, two books, nutritional manual, relaxation training tape and two computerized diet assessments.

The six-month program requires a substantial commitment to attend orientation and each session and to keep a diary of eating habits (about 30 minutes each night). The program is best suited to adults, ages 20 to 45, who can achieve lifestyle changes.

Those with chronic health problems are accepted with medical approval. Each applicant is required to have laboratory tests and a physical exam and the physician will submit the results and approval. (If the physical and appropriate lab tests were completed within the past year, they need not be repeated).

Group size is limited to 12 participants in order to provide the most personal support.

Upon completing 18 sessions, participants will fill out a self-assessment form. The self-assessment forms show dramatic changes in self-image and self-esteem. One participant wrote "I was not very sure of myself and had very little energy, now I feel great and like the way I look. I feel more confident!" Another wrote: "The changes I have learned to make will stay with me for life. I don't plan to ever go back to my old habits."

To receive registration information, call 657-3910, ext. 567. It could be a major step toward making significant changes in your life - to look better and most importantly, feel better about yourself.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant
Take Deductions
NOW

It's almost always a good idea to accelerate deductions, getting tax deductions as soon as possible to cut current tax obligations. This year it's especially important, because certain deductions will be less attractive -- or not available at all -- next year.

For example under the President's tax proposal, the top tax rate is to drop from 50 percent to 35 percent. This year, a $1,000 deduction would mean a $500 tax saving; next year it'll be worth only $350. Borrowing will cost more with lower brackets; it may be reasonable to borrow now for your I.R.A. or Keogh contribution.

Most important are the deductions that may NOT be deductions next year: state and local income taxes, property taxes, and sales taxes. If you're going to buy a car or a boat, buy in December instead of January. If there are property taxes or income taxes (not federal) that are due early next year, prepay them before the end of the month so that you can deduct them against 1985 income and 1985 tax rates. Talk it over with your accountant.

Brought to you as a public service by Joyce K. Brisbois, C.P.A., 8 Middlesex Ave., P.O. Box 176, Wilmington, MA 01887 658-5034.

The long search for POWs

Across the Mekong

Part two of a two-part series

By JIM ROUILLARD

"I am home."

—Molly Leiken

"An American Hymn"

"We'd already discussed what would happen if one of us were severely wounded, and it was agreed upon that, depending upon the severity of the wound, if he couldn't be transported, we, uh, we'd terminate him right there."

—Kevin Hannaford

"...perhaps we must stand fast a little, even at the risk of being heroes."

—Sir Thomas More

Crossing the Mekong River into Communist Laos just after dusk, to avoid both Laotian and Thai gunboats, were three former Massachusetts Marines, a self-appointed rescue squad.

It was September, and the three were on a mission — illegal, unsanctioned and frowned upon by the United States Government — involving considerable personal risk, and the possibility of betrayal and death.

The three were on their way to a hidden jungle compound of "Free Laotian guerrillas," in preliminary negotiation for the

their way across the Mekong in a longboat, and step ashore in the Laotian jungle an hour after sunset.

Once he was in the jungle, the memories and fears of combat in Vietnam came back to Hannaford:

"I said to myself, 'There's only four of us here. We don't know if there's an ambush out here, what type of surveillance or detection devices they have,' because it's quite sophisticated. They have SAM (surface-to air) missile sites in Laos that will down any helicopter. They're prepared. (There are) forts in Laos manned by the (ruling communist) Pathet Lao and Russian advisers."

The trip had been planned by Arnone, a diminutive (5'3", 139-pound) former Green Beret currently living in western Massachusetts, whose size is an advantage among the small people of Indo-China, and who has repeatedly expended his own time and money, and risked his life, according to Hannaford, in five privately financed trips to Southeast Asia.

September's "Operation Snatch" was the first mission Arnone has led, Hannaford added. But through his experience on previous un-

Why did the three friends undertake Operation Snatch, whose likely results were tenuous, and, at best, involved substantial risk?

It's a question of conviction, according to Hannaford: "You're going there simply because you believe...what you're doing is right and it's got to be done, and you know that no-one else is going to do it if you don't."

"If events (had) led to something different, then we would have shot each other, if it came to that, because we had all three decided we were not going to wind up POWs ourselves, especially if we were wounded."

Once into the Laotian jungle, and arrived at the Free Laotians' camp, Hannaford said, "Mr. Lee (their Thai guide — a pseudonym) left us... and a guy came out of the jungle with a...single candle." Mr. Lee had a short discussion with the Laotian, then called the three vets forward, Hannaford added.

"Now, at first, there was only the fella with the candle, and then slowly, but deliberately, they began to come out of this camp..."

"We entered the area, a very well concealed compound, dead in the jungle... The negotiations were discussed mostly in Thai," which Hannaford does not speak.

Hannaford said Arnone came out of the discussion and told his comrades, "Well, they've got two of our guys and they want forty grand." He said they're

Offbeat American history

FM TALK: Our far-flung correspondent is on special assignment. Until his return, here's another edition of those off-beat tidbits on American history to keep you busy:

If the Democratic party thinks it's taking it on the chin these days, consider a crackpot charge they had to defend against in 1953: the New Deal Democrats had been accused of stealing gold from Fort Knox. The Daughters of the American Revolution finally convinced Dwight Eisenhower, the first GOP president in two decades, to have the gold counted. Fort Knox was found to contain $30,442,415,581.70 in gold. Lo and behold that was ten dollars less than it should've contained! Mrs. Georgia Clark, who had been the treasurer of the United States under the Democrats, immediately forwarded a check to the federal government to cover the loss, and put an end to the story that the Democrats of the New Deal era were thieves.

Republican Senator Kenneth Keating was considered one of the wittiest members of Congress. It was he who once said, "Roosevelt proved a man could be President for life; Truman proved anybody could be President; and Eisenhower proved you don't need to have a President." I wonder what Senator Keating would have said about our current Mr. President...

Senator John F. Kennedy was also known for his wit. He had to be witty when he ran for president in 1960; it was the only effective tool he had to defend himself against some of those by his opponent, Richard M. Nixon. For example, Nixon once accused Kennedy of telling a "bare-faced lie." Kennedy responded with, "Having seen (Nixon) four times up close...and made up, I would not accuse Mr. Nixon of being bare-faced." Kennedy left it to the American people to decide who was telling the truth.

On another occasion, Mr. Kennedy displayed his wit to the press with this remark: "Do you realize the responsibility I carry? I'm the only person between Nixon and the White House!"

Nixon once referred to Kennedy as just "another Truman." Kennedy said during a campaign speech shortly afterwards that he regarded Nixon's statement as a compliment, adding, "I consider (Nixon) another Dewey."

Lyndon Johnson was known for his gift-giving. He had a passion for giving a particular gift: electric toothbrushes! He noted in a biography by Doris Kearns, entitled "Lyndon Johnson and the American Dream," that he gave away electric toothbrushes because friends would not forget him. He said, according to Kearns, "I know that from now until the end of their days they will think of me the first thing in the morning and the last at night." By the way, Kearns received twelve toothbrushes from LBJ during the ten years she worked as an intern at the White House.

John V. Lindsey, the former mayor of New York City, once confessed that people irritated him. "The only problem I ever have in New York is people," he was once quoted as having said. "People present me with a constant headache — we have too many slobos." Lindsey was considered by many New Yorkers to be a mayor who was truly concerned about the plight of the less fortunate people who lived in that city.

Richard Nixon's mother once recalled that her son, at the age

AT THE "FREE LAOTIAN" CAMP in the jungle of Communist Laos, Vinnie Arnone, formerly of Malden, is flanked by two guerrilla leaders who are fighting the ruling Communist Pathet Lao party—and offer two American POWs they say they have in custody, in exchange for $40,000. The guerrillas' eyes are blacked out to protect their identity.

release of an American prisoner of war (POW), one among hundreds reportedly still being held in Southeast Asia. They admit that they were frightened. The former Vietnam veterans: Vincent Arnone, Kenneth O'Connell and Stoneham native Kevin Hannaford, had travelled from Bangkok, Thailand, to make successful trips, including "Omega Lazarus" in 1981 and "Velvet Hammer" in 1983, led by former Green Beret Lt. Col. James G. "Bo" Gritz, and financed in part by Texan millionaire H. Ross Perot and actor Clint Eastwood, Arnone said he has set up a network of contacts which he is sure will eventually prove fruitful.

Wilmington students in district band

Brian Murphy, and Stathis Feizidis, chorus; Jeff Murphy, and Kevin Williams, concert band, will be representing Wilmington High School when music dominates the news at Gloucester High as it hosts the annual Northeastern District Concert on Saturday, Jan. 18.

The concert is sponsored by the Massachusetts Music Educators Association Northeastern District which includes high school students from public and private schools.

The purpose of the Senior District Concert is to serve as an enrichment opportunity and to provide the highest caliber of musical experience. Following an audition, the most proficient of music students are grouped into four performing musical organizations: orchestra, chorus, band, and jazz ensemble. The students rehearse with guest conductors from the collegiate and professional level.

The music is more difficult and sophisticated than can be performed in the student's individual music setting. Participation in the District Festival Concert is a special musical experience.

Electric

A different part of the report stated that Wilmington residents are no longer receiving "estimated" bill from the Reading Light. The residents are also receiving "favorable responses" in reply to questions, by the RMLD the directors were told.

Task force

A task force of 12 persons has been appointed, to be a fact finding committee for Wilmington Square, because of the proposed new roads and bridge. The task force is to make a study of the problems involved, by the business firms in the area, with reference to the proposals for a new bridge and road in Wilmington Center.

When the task force has completed its study it will make its report to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, for consideration by the directors.

Wilmington police news

A motorcycle - auto accident on Dec. 4 at the corner of High Street and Middlesex Avenue resulted in the death, three days later, of James E. Thompson, 30, of Hyannis, at the Mass. General Hospital.

Thompson was reported to have been operating at a high rate of speed, going south on Middlesex Avenue toward the intersection. His motorcycle struck a car driven by Diane C. Massa, 30, of Highland Avenue, Winchester, according to reports, and turned the car over. Massa was taken to Winchester Hospital.

Officers David McCue and Chris Neville have enlisted the aid of State Trooper Bertinazzi of the Andover barracks, in solving the problems. Bertinazzi is reported to be an accident reconstruction expert.

A Lowell man was arrested on multiple motor vehicle charges at 2:30 a.m. on December 4 by Officer Jim Peterson. Donald J. Santuosso, 21, of Queens Street was charged with operating after suspension of license, an unregistered and uninsured auto, attaching plates, and use of defective equipment. There were also two warrants, one by the MDC police and one by the Holbrook police for his arrest. He was held at the police station overnight and taken to the Woburn Court in the morning.

Wednesday evening after investigating an accident on Park Street, Officer David McCue arrested John F. Kelley, 43, of Gowing Road. He was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol and failure to keep to the right.

Two persons were arrested on out-of-town warrants Thursday night. Richard Kennedy, 7 Ballardvale Street was arrested on a default warrant issued by the Framingham police, and was turned over to Framingham officers. Sgt. Vassallo and Officer LeGrand made the arrest. Officers Redding and Neville arrested Steven Dowling, 20, of Winchester shortly before midnight, on the basis of a warrant from Stowe. He was turned over to the Stow police.

Two youths were arrested at the High School Friday after school officials reported incidents to Detective John Ritchie. Timothy F. Foley, 17, of Hopkins Street was arrested at 11:30 a.m. Later Danny V. Rinaldi, 18 of Sherburn Place was arrested by Ritchie. Both youths were charged in Woburn Court, with possession of a controlled substance, and arraigned for a hearing.

Friday evening Officers McCue and Neville arrested Allen J. Parsons of 64 Ballardvale Street on a state police warrant.

Officer Maureen LeGrand arrested at Tewksbury man on liquor charges Friday evening. Richard F. Summering of Maple Street was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence. He was later bailed but was held for the state police, to pick him up on a default warrant.

Officer Jim Peterson early Saturday morning arrested two men on motor vehicle and drug charges. Francis Tarantino, 23, of Johns Avenue, Lynn was charged with operating after suspension of his driver's license an unregistered, uninsured car, and with illegally attaching license plates to an automobile.

Darren McGray, 25, a passenger, was charged with possession of a Class D substance and was also held on a capias warrant from the Chelmsford Police. After having been bailed from Wilmington he was picked up by Chelmsford officers.

Christmas social sold out

The Council on Aging's Christmas therapeutic social has been closed out. Those wishing to attend will now be placed on a waiting list. It is hoped that a senior who signed up and now feels they cannot attend will call the Center as soon as possible to allow those waiting to go.

Shut-ins visited

For the last six years the Council has worked very hard to reach as many shut-ins and low-income seniors as possible during the holiday season. On Thanksgiving 60 catered meals were delivered to shut-ins. Last week fruit baskets were delivered to 10 seniors over 90 years old. In the next two weeks members will be delivering complete dinners and gifts to many more. There is a large number of seniors whom the Council feels could use a little help during the holidays, but it is not possible to know about all those needing help. Any senior who has run into some difficulty this year stretching money because of expensive medical bills and prescriptions, should call the center and have their names added to the list.

Thanks

The Council of Aging could never continue this program year after year if it were not for the help of Chief of Police Bobby Stewart, the Kiwanis Club and Mary Thiel and her students from Wilmington High School. They supply money, gifts and food. Volunteers deliver items to the seniors in need of a little lift or help.

Buzzell Center

The seniors have been asking when the Buzzell Senior Center would be painted. The Renovation Committee received several estimates on the job. They were all very high. Doors and carpeting throughout the building is also needed along with a good deal of electrical work and other work which will use up most of the money. Representative Jim Miceli once again came to the seniors' aid. He contacted the Painter's Union. They agreed to paint the building for the seniors as a donation. Representative Miceli said the painters will try to complete the building if the weather holds off.

Supplementary

The Massachusetts rates for Federal SSI (Supplementary Social Security Income) payments as of January 1, 1986 will increase for those single elders living at home with no other income to $464.82. The maximum rate for couples living together at home with no other income will be $352.86 per person or $705.72 per couple. SSI is a Federal income maintenance program providing monthly payments to citizens over the age of 65, blind, disabled or who have little or no income and resources. Claimants who qualify under more than one category can receive payments under the category which the Social Security office believes to be the most advantageous to the person or couple.

There are also 12 categories of living arrangements which will effect the amount of payment to a person in a shared living situation. Elders who feel they may qualify are encouraged to contact the Lowell Social Security office on Palmer Street. A person who qualifies for SSI even though it is only a small amount automatically qualifies for food stamps and Medicaid in Massachusetts.

The long search for POWs Across the Mekong

Part two of a two-part series

By JIM ROUILLARD

"I am home."
—Molly Leiken
"An American Hymn"

"We'd already discussed what would happen if one of us were severely wounded, and it was agreed upon that, depending upon the severity of the wound, if he couldn't be transported, we, uh, we'd terminate him right there."

—Kevin Hannaford

"...perhaps we must stand fast a little, even at the risk of being heroes."

—Sir Thomas More

Crossing the Mekong River into Communist Laos just after dusk, to avoid both Laotian and Thai gunboats, were three former Massachusetts Marines, a self-appointed rescue squad.

It was September, and the three were on a mission — illegal, unsanctioned and frowned upon by the United States Government — involving considerable personal risk, and the possibility of betrayal and death.

The three were on their way to a hidden jungle compound of "Free Laotian guerrillas," in preliminary negotiation for the

their way across the Mekong in a longboat, and step ashore in the Laotian jungle an hour after sunset.

Once he was in the jungle, the memories and fears of combat in Vietnam came back to Hannaford:

"I said to myself, 'There's only four of us here. We don't know if there's an ambush out here, what type of surveillance or detection devices they have,' because it's quite sophisticated. They have SAM (surface-to air) missile sites in Laos that will down any helicopter. They're prepared. (There are) forts in Laos manned by the (ruling communist) Pathet Lao and Russian advisers."

The trip had been planned by Arnone, a diminutive (5'3", 139-pound) former Green Beret currently living in western Massachusetts, whose size is an advantage among the small people of Indo-China, and who has repeatedly expended his own time and money, and risked his life, according to Hannaford, in five privately financed trips to Southeast Asia.

September's "Operation Snatch" was the first mission Arnone has led, Hannaford added. But through his experience on previous un-

Why did the three friends undertake Operation Snatch, whose likely results were tenuous, and, at best, involved substantial risk?

It's a question of conviction, according to Hannaford: "You're going there simply because you believe...what you're doing is right and it's got to be done, and you know that no-one else is going to do it if you don't."

"If events (had) led to something different, then we would have shot each other, if it came to that, because we had all three decided we were not going to wind up POWs ourselves, especially if we were

Once into the Laotian jungle, and arrived at the Free Laotians' camp, Hannaford said, "Mr. Lee (their Thai guide — a pseudonym) left us... and a guy came out of the jungle with a single candle." Mr. Lee had a short discussion with the Laotian, then called the three vets forward, Hannaford added.

"Now, at first, there was only the fella with the candle, and then slowly, but deliberately, they began to come out of this camp..."

"We entered the area, a very well concealed compound, dead in the jungle... The negotiations were discussed mostly in Thai," which Hannaford does not speak.

Hannaford said Arnone came out of the discussion and told his comrades, "Well, they've got two of our guys and they want forty grand." He said they're

Offbeat American history

FM TALK: Our far-flung correspondent is on special assignment. Until his return, here's another edition of those off-beat tidbits on American history to keep you busy:

If the Democratic party thinks it's taking it on the chin these days, consider a crackpot charge they had to defend against in 1953: the New Deal Democrats had been accused of stealing gold from Fort Knox. The Daughters of the American Revolution finally convinced Dwight Eisenhower, the first GOP president in two decades, to have the gold counted. Fort Knox was found to contain $30,442,415,581.70 in gold. Lo and behold that was ten dollars less than it should've contained! Mrs. Georgia Clark, who had been the treasurer of the United States under the Democrats, immediately forwarded a check to the federal government to cover the loss, and put an end to the story that the Democrats of the New Deal era were thieves.

Republican Senator Kenneth Keating was considered one of the wittiest members of Congress. It was he who once said, "Roosevelt proved a man could be President for life; Truman proved anybody could be President; and Eisenhower proved you don't need to have a President." I wonder what Senator Keating would have said about our current Mr. President...

Senator John F. Kennedy was also known for his wit. He had to be witty when he ran for president in 1960; it was the only effective tool he had to defend himself against some of those by his opponent, Richard M. Nixon. For example, Nixon once accused Kennedy of telling a "bare-faced lie." Kennedy responded with, "Having seen (Nixon) four times up close...and made up, I would not accuse Mr. Nixon of being bare-faced." Kennedy left it to the American people to decide who was telling the truth.

On another occasion, Mr. Kennedy displayed his wit to the press with this remark: "Do you realize the responsibility I carry? I'm the only person between Nixon and the White House!"

Nixon once referred to Kennedy as just "another Truman." Kennedy said during a campaign speech shortly afterwards that he regarded Nixon's statement as a compliment, adding: "I consider (Nixon) another Dewey."

Lyndon Johnson was known for his gift-giving. He had a passion for giving a particular gift: electric toothbrushes! He noted in a biography by Doris Kearns, entitled "Lyndon Johnson and the American Dream," that he gave away electric toothbrushes because friends would not forget him. He said, according to Kearns, "I know that from now until the end of their days they will think of me the first thing in the morning and the last at night." By the way, Kearns received twelve toothbrushes from LBJ during the ten years she worked as an intern at the White House.

John V. Lindsey, the former mayor of New York City, once confessed that people irritated him. "The only problem I ever have in New York is people," he was once quoted as having said. "People present me with a constant headache — we have too many slobes." Lindsey was considered by many New Yorkers to be a mayor who was truly concerned about the plight of the less fortunate people who lived in that city.

Richard Nixon's mother once recalled that her son, at the age

AT THE "FREE LAOTIAN" CAMP in the jungle of Communist Laos, Vinnie Arnone, formerly of Malden, is flanked by two guerrilla leaders who are fighting the ruling Communist Pathet Lao party—and offer two American POWs they say they have in custody, in exchange for $40,000. The guerrillas' eyes are blacked out to protect their identity.

release of an American prisoner of war (POW), one among hundreds reportedly still being held in Southeast Asia. They admit that they were frightened. The former Vietnam veterans: Vincent Arnone, Kenneth O'Connell and Stoneham native Kevin Hannaford, had travelled from Bangkok, Thailand, to make successful trips, including "Omega Lazarus" in 1981 and "Velvet Hammer" in 1983, led by former Green Beret Lt. Col. James G. "Bo" Gritz, and financed in part by Texan millionaire H. Ross Perot and actor Clint Eastwood, Arnone said he has set up a network of contacts which he is sure will eventually prove fruitful.

Wilmington students in district band

Brian Murphy, and Stathis Feizidis, chorus; Jeff Murphy, and Kevin Williams, concert band, will be representing Wilmington High School when music dominates the news at Gloucester High as it hosts the annual Northeastern District Concert on Saturday, Jan. 18.

The concert is sponsored by the Massachusetts Music Educators Association Northeastern District which includes high school students from public and private schools.

The purpose of the Senior District Concert is to serve as an enrichment opportunity and to provide the highest caliber of musical experience. Following an audition, the most proficient of music students are grouped into four performing musical organizations: orchestra, chorus, band, and jazz ensemble. The students rehearse with guest conductors from the collegiate and professional level.

The music is more difficult and sophisticated than can be performed in the student's individual music setting. Participation in the District Festival Concert is a special musical experience.

Task force

A task force of 12 persons has been appointed, to be a fact finding committee for Wilmington Square,

When the task force has completed its study it will make its report to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, for consideration by the directors.

State. Listings range from simple country farmhouses to luxury city townhouses.

The guide's listings are organized by region and town, and the booklet includes 10 regional maps for easy reference.

Massachusetts tourism director Richard P. Rust says the guide's publication reflects a burgeoning interest in bed and breakfasts. "The number of requests for such a guide has been steadily increasing over the last few years," Rust notes. "This new brochure will provide a much-needed service for travelers as well as supporting a group of small entrepreneurs that play an important role in the state's travel industry."

The state's regional tourist councils supplied the listings to the Division of Tourism for publications.

The new Spirit of Massachusetts b&b guide is part of the state's year-round, tourism promotion campaign.

Bed and Breakfast guides are available at all Massachusetts Tourist Information Centers and from the Massachusetts Division of Tourism, 100 Cambridge Street, 13th Floor, Boston, Ma. 02202, telephone (617) 727-3201.

Depression seminar

Depression strikes everyone at one time or another, some to a greater degree than others.

Fortunately, for most of us, depression is short-lived. For others, it can be deeper and longer lasting and attributable to a number of causes, including loneliness, loss of a loved one, failure, the feeling that no one likes them, even chronic pain. It can also be attributed to holiday time or winter confinement.

We may not show our feelings or even be aware of their causes. Or, we may share our feelings with family or friends, hoping to find strength from them. This can help.

So can attending the next in a series of Women's Health Programs being presented by Choate-Symmes Health Services. On Wednesday, December 11, at the Choate Hospital Division, Kenneth Minkoff, M.D., chief of psychiatry at Choate-Symmes, will address the topic of "Women and Depression."

Dr. Minkoff's presentation will help program participants to understand the symptoms and causes of depression and how to overcome the holiday and mind-winter 'blues.' The program, scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria, is free. More information can be obtained from the Community Health Education Department at Choate 933-6700, ext. 378.

about 50 miles from here; they're in tough shape.

"So we turned over the presents to them (supplies, clothing, food and 'mockatoons'—or slingshots—with which the Laotians can bring down jungle animals for food, and a token amount of money, enough to keep them in rice for about a week)." They concluded their stay in the Laotian camp by taking photos of the guerillas, Hannaford said.

"We had a hell of a...discussion about taking the pictures in the camp. They said, 'No way, are you crazy, a flash will carry two miles around here,' and we tried to say, 'we've got to have them, it's very important...we'll take them under this triple canopy here, in as quick a succession as possible, but without them, we can't do anything for you...Finally they relented and said, 'all right.'"

Like Arnone's past trips, Operation SNATCH did not bring out an American POW. But it was not altogether a useless mission, Hannaford said. The three men came out convinced of the existence of the two POWs—and that the sum of $40,000 will effect their release.

"I was asked this question, 'How do you know they (the POWs) weren't at the other end of the camp?' I said, 'I don't know...' and Vinnie and I had discussed this.

"He said, 'If you do happen to see one in the camp, make absolutely no gesture or movement toward him, or I'll stitch you right up the back. We will do it on their terms.'

"And you're convinced that this is not just a ploy to get supplies from you, and money?" Hannaford was asked.

He is convinced. For one thing, he said, "They had thirty grand standing right there in front of them. (A bounty of $30,000 which in on Arnone's head in both Thailand and Cambodia, according to Hannaford.) All they had to do was fire one round...into Vinnie, take us out and that's 30 grand. But, obviously, there would never be another avenue of support."

The trio from Massachusetts has risked possible federal indictment, capture, torture, imprisonment and death—for what four previous administrations have declared to be chimera: the word or rumor of Americans still held captive.

Currently, however, according to recent media accounts, the U.S. Government has shifted its stance on the issue of whether there are still American POWs in Southeast Asia.

Major Keith Snyder, spokesman for the U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) maintains, in a report in the Boston Herald, that efforts such as Arnone's, O'Connell's and Hannaford's "are counter-productive, because they interfere with our efforts among Indochinese governments...efforts that have been improving concerning POWs and MIAs."

Yet a government which earlier absolutely denied the possibility of any POWs remaining in Southeast Asia according to Hannaford, is now admitting "there could be Americans being held," in Major Snyder's words, who cites statistics indicating that 4,200 MIA reports have reached his agency since 1974, including 805 live sightings. Twenty-two percent of that number are reported to be known or suspected fabrications, leaving 15 percent—or 119 reports, still under investigation by the DIA liaison office in Bangkok.

There is an intensity of conviction, at the very least, that rings true in an afternoon's interview with Kevin Hannaford, and in his patient, exhaustive outline of what he, O'Connell, and Arnone have risked in attempts to achieve what few patriots Hannaford adds that he is "not in any way trying to stir up anything against our government."

Yet chimera or substance—the possibility of fellow Americans' still being held captive in Southeast Asia is disturbingly real to these few men from Massachusetts. They have been there—they affirm that others will return—and they will continue to work for substantive action by the United States.

"We cannot forget," Kevin Hannaford said, summing the account of his recent venture, a venture which involved more risk than a sifting of statistics or a declaration of policy. It was the risk of all, in short, staked on the hope that one day, thanks to Hannaford's, Arnone's, and O'Connell's efforts, at least one of their still captive fellow Americans will finally be able to say:

"I am home."

Watch for spring financial aid deadline

Thousands of worthy college students don't receive financial aid because they wait too long to begin looking for aid, announced Kathryn Rosypal, President of Great Potentials Resource Center, a nationwide financial aid information service based in Chicago.

"G.P.R.C. is deeply concerned about this situation because each Spring we receive hundreds of frantic requests for financial aid information from uninformed students who had no idea that most application deadlines occur in March for aid needed in September," reported Mrs. Rosypal. Some sources of aid have deadlines as early as November, while others have deadlines as late as June, but over half of the application deadlines occur during March.

"It's incredible how totally uninformed students are about financial aid procedures," Rosypal said. "Apparently financial aid officers don't inform unsuspecting students about early application dates, so they miss out on receiving much-needed money due to ignorance about the time-consuming procedures involved in obtaining aid."

High school students planning to attend college or vo-tech school, and college seniors planning to attend graduate school, should begin looking for aid in the Fall of their Senior year at the very latest. Other students should obtain information about sources of aid at least nine months before they need the money.

"We desperately need to inform the young people of our nation that in order to qualify for tuition money, they MUST obtain information about financial aid early enough to meet the March application deadlines," urged Mrs. Rosypal.

G.P.R.C. helps students find private sources of financial aid by using a computerized system to match a student's personal data with the eligibility requirements of thousands of scholarships, grants, awards, loans and fellowships to find sources of aid which suit each student's special needs. This Center services college, vo-tech, and graduate school students throughout the United States.

"Our computer contains information on approximately $3 billion worth of financial aid which is distributed to students each year, but we can't help students who write to us in the Spring for aid needed in September," Mrs. Rosypal admitted. "There are no quick solutions to students' financial needs, no matter how desperate the situation is."

For free information about GPRC's undergraduate and/or graduate school services, specify which service you need and write to: Great Potentials Resource Center, 2529 N. Richmond St., Chicago, IL 60647.

FILMETER

A capsule look at cinema

FILMETER is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the NEA staff in Hollywood and New York a joyful antidote to the usual movie sound-track dreck. GRADE: B-minus.

BRING ON THE NIGHT (PG-13) — Sting, Branford Marsalis. (Documentary) For music fans only. Here Police bassist Sting, who has starred in several mediocre dramatic films ("The Bride," "Dune") documents the first days of his recent world tour. "Bring On the Night" is ostensibly about the birth of his new band, but in both the band and the movie, Sting's ego gets in the way. Director Michael Apted, straining to show that Sting is brainy, tender, artful and witty, has assembled a propaganda piece for his star. Yet when Sting stops pronouncing to sing and play, this clumsy film nearly redeems itself. The backing musicians, six jazzy young Americans led by saxophonist Marsalis, joke well and play better. GRADE: B.

GRINGO (NR) — John Spacely. (Documentary) Grab a razor blade, slice open your arm and pour in the salt. Feel the pain, now you have a sense of just how excruciating "Gringo" is. This is a horror film — in the most literal sense — and the monster is heroin. Director Lech Kowalski traces real-life junkie Spacely through a whirlwind tour of New York's rat-ridden drug supermarkets, and the film is infested with the staples of a junkie's life: hunger, filth and death. "Gringo" offers a lurid look into a world the media still finds glamorous; it's painful and harrowing to watch, but it's a film that must be seen. GRADE: A.

HAIL MARY (NR) — Myriem Roussel, Philippe Lacoste, Thierry Lacoste. (Drama) Jean-Luc Godard's latest film, which modernizes the Annunciation and Nativity tales (Mary works in a gas station, Joseph's a cab driver), has been causing holy terror. Last April, Pope John Paul II issued a statement deploring the film. Fundamentalists, holding rosary rallies outside theaters, have labeled it blasphemous. Does "Hail Mary" live up to its notoriety? No. Godard has an iconoclastic vision, but here, his sensibility falters — the film, a disjointed exploration of love, friendship and physiological and psychological struggle, is too fragmented for its own good, and ultimately proves to be tiring. Yet, like all Godard films, attention must be paid. GRADE: C.

ONE MAGIC CHRISTMAS (G) — Mary Steenburgen, Gary Basaraba, Harry Dean Stanton. (Fantasy) This Disney offering is part "Christmas Carol," part "It's a Wonderful Life." Steenburgen doesn't see much reason to get into the Christmas spirit. Her husband is unemployed; she's not too crazy about her cashier's job, and, come January, her family will have to move. Stanton is the Christmas angel sent to get Steenburgen into the proper holiday mood. He succeeds, of course, but before he does, things turn unexpectedly grim. The grimmer aspects may bother adults more than children, who will care only that the movie has a happy ending. Performances are uniformly fine, and Steenburgen deserves special credit for making what could be an unsympathetic character very likable. GRADE: B-minus.

SANTA CLAUS: THE MOVIE (PG) — Dudley Moore, John Lithgow, David Huddleston. (Fantasy/Comedy) It seems Christmas movies — or, at least, movies filled with the holiday spirit — have been around almost as long as the myth of Santa Claus. And it's that myth — the legacy of the jolly fat man — that director Jeanmarc Szwarc explores in this fantastical wonder. Get past the first leaden 20 minutes, and "Santa Claus" opens up like a gaily wrapped gift, filled with wit and wisdom. The cast is fine — who better to play an imp than Moore? — and Lithgow is great as a greedy toy maker. Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. More important, there's "Santa Claus," a film that reminds us of the magic in ourselves. GRADE: B-plus.

SUBWAY (R) — Christopher Lambert, Isabelle Adjani. (Drama) "Subway" is long on atmosphere, but short on plot. Director Luc Besson has managed, through skillful use of dim lighting, to make the Paris metro look almost as grungy as its New York counterpart (though it's still remarkably free of litter and graffiti). The chase scenes are brilliantly executed, and Isabelle Adjani is gorgeous. But what's the point? What plot there is doesn't exactly hold together. GRADE: C-plus.

THAT WAS THEN, THIS IS NOW (R) — Emilio Estevez, Craig Sheffer. (Drama) The story of two friends who grow up and grow apart, from an S.E. Hinton novel. It is an attempt at a serious teen film, about the gritty life of two youths who drink beer, heist cars and fight for their own identities. These are basically good kids who try to outgrow their own hipness, but they can't outgrow the film's. GRADE: C.

TO LIVE AND DIE IN L.A. (R) — William L. Petersen, William Dafoe, John Pankow, Debra Feuer, Dean Stockwell. William Friedkin's latest film is hot. It's also cold — an ice-cold, action-packed thriller riddled with blood and bullets. The film festers with ugliness and pulls no punches — the hero dies, violence is overwhelming — but Friedkin manages to infuse the film's grittiness with infectious sights and sounds. There's a highly stylized look. You can feel the non-stop action pulsate alongside the non-stop music. The plot (counterfeiter vs. Secret Service) pales next to the film's throbbing pace, and the bumper-to-bumper ballet — perhaps the greatest film car chase since Friedkin's "French Connection" — is riveting. GRADE: B-plus.

Do-it-yourselfer manual available

It is getting more and more difficult to find a workman for those little jobs such as fixing a leaky faucet or toilet, adjusting that garage door that is getting heavier and heavier, repairing screens, masonry and the doorbell. And even if a workman is located who will do a "little job" the bill that is presented is shocking. The workman explains, with justification, that your "little job" which takes an hour-and-a-half will require, with travel and preparation, half his work-day and cost as much as $100.

Most home repair professionals will tell you frankly that they are not interested in small jobs. When you call for someone to fix a door that sticks, a crack in the sidewalk, a doorbell that doesn't ring or small roof repair, you are treated like someone with the plague. There just is not enough money in these jobs to attract their attention.

No wonder that most homes have a number of these nagging minor repairs that irritate us (and our spouses) constantly but don't get done. This annoyance and inconvenience we are told by Bob Berko editor of Small Home Repairs Made Easy, is unnecessary. Mr. Berko, former director of the N.J. Home Improvement Contractors Association, says that the small repairs around the house can be done with little trouble by any man or woman with or without experience or aptitude.

Consumer Education Research Center (CERC) a national non-profit consumer organization has just issued Berko's primer for neophyte do-it-yourselfers that can be used by those of us who think we are all thumbs. The book Small Home Repairs Made Easy is available from CCE, 439 Clark Street, South Orange, N.J. 07079 for $4 (including postage).

Millions of Americans who don't have the time or expertise to take on major home repairs or renovations are finding that by following simple directions, they can do most of the small repairs a home constantly requires. They discover that doing small repairs themselves not only saves a substantial amount of money but gives them a sense of accomplishment.

A leaky faucet can be repaired easily with a washer (or other parts described in the book) and a wrench by following the books easy-to-use directions and profuse illustrations. If your problem is a toilet tank that is dripping or a stuffed bowl, the solutions are explained in words and pictures that make the repair simple. Want to hang a picture? The book will tell you how to find the studs or, if they are not behind the place where you need them, how to hang heavy objects on hollow walls.

Some home maintenance is so simple to do yourself and so expensive to have done by others, it is a wasteful luxury to have someone else do it. Painting is one of those jobs. The book has a section describing different paints and their uses, the tools necessary and instructions on how to do the job, including tips and shortcuts. Painting the inside of your home is easy and a real money-saver. A painter will charge $200 or more to paint a room. You can do the same job, as well or better, for less than $20 in a day or less. If you can recruit other members of the family, you can do four rooms in a couple of days. Saving $800 in a weekend can pay for a family vacation. Small Home Repairs Made Easy tells exactly what tools and supplies are necessary for each job so that you don't have to stop in the middle to go to the hardware store.

Information offered on epilepsy and treatment

What causes epilepsy?

According to the Epilepsy Association of Greater Boston, there is no single cause.

The neurological disorder which affects two million Americans can be caused by a number of events, including severe head injury, serious viral infections, deprivation of oxygen to the brain, poisoning, and certain underlying illnesses.

However, in about 50 percent of the cases, there is no known cause, says the Epilepsy

Association of Greater Boston.

"Severe head injury, such as received in auto accidents, from sports, and from gunshot wounds, are a major cause of epilepsy," (the Epilepsy Association of Greater Boston) says.

For further details on the causes of epilepsy and its treatment, contact the Epilepsy Association of Greater Boston, 59 Temple Place, Suite 664, Boston, Mass. 02111. Telephone 542-2292.

Sewing turns excess childhood energy into creative holiday fun

In a few weeks, children will be out of school for the holidays, their energy boosted by seasonal spirit. A good way to channel that enthusiasm is to inspire them to create something — ornaments, small gifts, home decorations — by sewing.

Children are fascinated by a sewing machine. With supervision, even a 6-year-old can use it successfully. Kids love to handle and cut colorful fabrics, especially holiday fabrics with a glittery sheen.

"Choose simple projects that will provide good results fast," says Becky Williams, education director at White Sewing Machine Company. "Children need quick gratification. Encourage them to present what they've made, as gifts to relatives or friends, to foster pride in their work. Children love the attention they get with successful sewing projects."

Keep a few tips in mind as your child gets started, Williams advises. Make sure all the equipment is working — the machine is stitching smoothly, the scissors cut cleanly, the needle is sharp — or you'll create nothing but frustration. Provide a few fabric selections, and let your child choose. Don't overwhelm the child by turning him or her loose in a fabric store, only to have you veto a bad choice.

"Even very young children will delight in the different choices of texture, pattern, and color," Williams says. "You can foster creativity even in 4-year-olds by including them in the final selection process for fabric for their own clothes when you sew."

Show children the correct way to operate the machine, and encourage them to practice on scraps. Make sure they understand the instructions, and then stand back.

"Be available, to supervise and answer questions, but don't hover over your child, directing every move," Williams says. "Children will enjoy creating something themselves. Let them."

FOR THE TREE

A colorful fabric ornament makes a quick and pretty gift. A child can also hang these in a doorway or window, to enjoy the family's admiration.

Start by helping your child choose fabric. In a fabric store, point out a few calicos and small prints, in coordinating colors, for a set of charming country ornaments. For a more sophisticated look, pull a few bolts of December's party fabrics, such as gold, silver, red, or green lame. Don't overlook Christmas fabrics, printed with holly, Santas, elves, or perky teddy bears.

If you have a collection of scrap fabrics, this step can take place at home, cutting the cost of these ornaments to almost nothing.

First, cut a 10-inch square of fabric. Finish the edge with an overcast or zigzag stitch (in contrasting thread, perhaps), stitch lace to the edges of the country fabric ornaments, or attach a shiny trim to the lame.

Draw the square up around a styrofoam ball; a ball 3 inches in diameter works with a 10-inch square of fabric. Finish the ornament with a tightly knotted bow of lace or trim, with a loop for hanging.

If your child has overcast the edges, fashion a same-fabric ribbon by overcasting a narrow strip of fabric.

"With close supervision, an older child can create ribbons very quickly by seaming, overcasting, and trimming. This can be done all in one operation with a serger," Williams says. "A child or teen can create a whole wardrobe of hair ribbons in a few minutes this way."

BATH MITTS

Fun, terry bath mitts can be created by a single child, or made on a family "assembly line" with children of different ages completing different steps.

The child starts by tracing a "mitten" on paper around his or her hand, and then enlarging it by 2 or 3 inches all the way around, Williams says. Pin the pattern to a double layer of terry and cut. Overcast or zigzag the edges. With right sides together, stitch all sides except the wrist edge. On an assembly line, this could be the oldest child's task.

Children can decorate their personal bath mitts with fabric paints, creating their own design, or filling in the block letters of their names, outlined by an adult. Williams suggests that the painted design adorn only the mitt edges, to leave the mitt's terry washing surface soft.

YARDSTICK HOLDER

A yardstick holder makes a surprisingly handy gift for use in a kitchen or utility room. Almost any medium-weight fabric will work, but a colorful burlap gives your child a chance to fringe the edges for a finish.

Start with a double layer of fabric, cutting a strip 5 inches wide by 36 inches long. Fold 2 inches of the top layer down. With wrong sides together, pin the layers and stitch the long edges and the bottom of the holder, leaving an inch seam allowance all around.

On the top layer of burlap only, unravel four or five threads from the fabric's edge, leaving a fringe. To make a "hanger," stitch a loop of seam binding or strong trim at the top.

Children can decorate the yardstick holder with glued-on felt cutouts of vegetables, animals, alphabet letters, or their own designs.

HOLIDAY PLACEMATS

"Part of what children love about the holidays are the decorations at home and the special feeling it gives the celebration," William says. "Decorating the house is as much fun as enjoying the festive look later."

"Let children get involved in the preparations. Take advantage of their creativity; children's work is especially appropriate at this season."

Start the holiday placemats by cutting 12-by-16-inch squares of brightly colored felt. An older child can cut three placemats at once.

Using a coordinated print, in a medium- or light-weight fabric, trace big balloon letters right on the fabric, letting your child cut them out. Pin the letters, forming the names of family members, in the upper left corner. Attach the letters to the placemat, using a zigzag stitch around the edges.

Younger children, instead of making their names, can trace holiday cookie cutters onto the print fabric, giving them easier shapes to handle.

"Let children catch your enthusiasm for sewing," Williams says. "Enjoy their efforts, and keep 'mistakes' in perspective. Most errors on these projects can be fixed with a little trim, applique and imagination."

Start the holiday placemats by cutting 12-by-16-inch squares of brightly colored felt. An older child can cut three placemats at once.

Using a coordinated print, in a medium- or light-weight fabric, trace big balloon letters right on the fabric, letting your child cut them out. Pin the letters, forming the names of family members, in the upper left corner. Attach the letters to the placemat, using a zigzag stitch around the edges.

Younger children, instead of making their names, can trace holiday cookie cutters onto the print fabric, giving them easier shapes to handle.

"Let children catch your enthusiasm for sewing," Williams says. "Enjoy their efforts, and keep 'mistakes' in perspective. Most errors on these projects can be fixed with a little trim, applique and imagination."

Looking good for the job

NEW YORK (UPI) — Talent or ability may be the most important assets job seekers have to offer potential employers, but research shows looks can often determine which applicant gets the job.

The Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association in New York reports "research has shown that attractive people are generally viewed positively..." and this attitude carries over into the job market.

That doesn't mean you have to look like a model to get a good job, but grooming, from hairstyle to clothes, should get as much attention as your resume, according to the association.

New York University psychologist Michael Solomon says research proves people should dress for the role they want to play on the job. Solomon's own study showed recently graduated students who dressed more formally for job interviews were noticeably more assertive, believed they made a favorable impression on the interviewer and asked for higher starting salaries than their informally dressed peers.

Computer obsession

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — It's possible to turn anything into an obsession and that includes computers.

A psychiatrist in Glasgow, Scotland, says he's seen computer obsession in four teen-age boys. They became mentally addicted to their home computers and one even required hospitalization.

Dr. Prem Misra says his four patients suffered nightmares, illusions, excessive daydreaming and exhaustion after letting computers "take over their lives."

Misra says the teen-agers became "unbalanced after spending up to 12 hours a day playing computer games and programming the machines. Their computers became the most important thing in their lives and they imagined the computers had a mind of their own."

Misra says parents should seek a doctor's advice if children with computers begin to show excessive day-dreaming or exhaustion.

Protecting paperbacks

(UPI) — Would you believe that you can protect the cover of a paperback book by giving it a thin coat of kitchen floor wax?

Family Circle magazine recommends you allow the wax to dry, then buff it. It says the wax protects the books from dirt and stains and also makes them easier to slide in and out on the bookshelf.

Allergy strategy

(UPI) — Late summer and early fall is still the allergy season in many areas of the country.

A study by an antihistamine maker shows that, nationwide, pollen and molds often are at their peak of activity in late summer and early fall.

According to the allergist who led the Chlor-Trimeton study, there are several things allergy sufferers can do to avoid some of the misery.

Dr. Sidney Friedlaender says if you know you'll be around ragweed or something else you're allergic to, it's smart to take an antihistamine one half hour before the exposure.

Air conditioning, in a car or home, also can spare allergy sufferers some suffering by filtering out the airborne allergens.

Pollen counts usually are at their highest in the morning, so Friedlaender recommends scheduling your outdoor activities until after noon.

For people allergic to bee stings, he recommends reducing use of cologne or perfume because they attract bees.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

I came home from work last night and found my wife Kathy in tears. "Tell me," I said, "what the heck happened today that makes you act this way?" "You worm," she snapped. "I've been telling you for weeks not to buy me anything for my birthday and you still forgot to buy me a present!"

I asked Fr. Robert Burns of Woburn if he knew why sardines are packed without their heads. "I thought you knew ... it's so they won't bite each other in the can."

Louis O'Malley of Winchester said to me, "Maureen, your cousin, sure is beautiful." "Yes," I replied, "and she's a wonderful housekeeper too. She has been married and divorced three times and each time has kept the house."

Dennis Tully found a wallet containing a $10 bill belonging to Uncle John Shea. Before returning it, he changed the $10 bill for 10 ones. When he returned it, Uncle John thanked him and said, "Because of the important papers the wallet contained, I was willing to give the 10 dollars to the finder, but I'm giving you what you wanted — a dollar bill. Next time, Dennis, be honest all the way."

My wife Kathy was having an especially hard time getting the catsup out of the bottle. While she was pounding on it the doorbell rang. "Go and see who is at the door," she shouted to young Tommy, who ran to open the door. It was Fr. Murphy, who had come to set the plans for the upcoming church bazaar. "Where's your mother?" he asked. Smart-alec Tommy smiled and said, "She's out in the kitchen, Father, hitting the bottle."

God will not look you over for the medals you've won or the diplomas on the wall or the degrees you've earned, but he will look for the scars you received as a worker in His vineyard.

Readers of Woodchips know of the respect and admiration that I have for many members of the MDC police force: like Lt. Dan Gately, Paul Pierce and Sgt. Al Avola of Woburn; Gene Courtney and Richard Powers in charge of the K-9 team at Stone Zoo; Sgt. William MacKay and Capt. Joseph Carl of Saugus; Lt. Robert MacDonald of Lynnfield; Sgt. Andy Roach and Bob Giguere, in charge of the Nahant Beach Station; Scott Bowermaster; Brian "Chip" Caron; and the following beautiful ladies in blue — Julie Wakefield, Susan Simons and Rosemary Chaisson. They all have relatives and friends in the Middlesex East area. I'm proud of all of you.

A bookie friend of mine died last week and the services were held at "20 to 1" in the afternoon. A "passage" was read from the "Book of Numbers." He was interred in a section reserved for those who did crossword puzzles. They are buried "6 down and 2 across." He was an atheist and his epitaph reads: "Here lies a guy named Joe — who is all dressed up — but has no place to go."

A "bulldozer" is a person who sleeps during a political speech.

Folks, if you spent a day with my Uncle John of North Reading and his friend Rowan Fitzgerald, you would be ready for the booby hatch. Uncle John was selling raffle tickets and asked Rowan if he wanted to buy one. "What is the raffle for?" "It's for a widow and her six children," replied Uncle John. "I'll buy no such ticket — what in the heck would I do with a widow and her six children if I won?" exclaimed Rowan.

My wife Kathy burst into the room where I was watching the Patriots play the New York Jets and shouted, "I thought we were to share the garden work half and half — why aren't you outside helping me rake the leaves instead of watching a stupid football game?" I thought I'd try out some of what I learned in the "Effective Communications Course" I took last year. I had to really watch it because Kathy has a "perfect right," and her "left hook" isn't that bad, either, so I said, "Kathy, dear, I mean to keep my end of the bargain and rake half the leaves — but, dear, my half of the leaves are still on the tree." It didn't work. I had to pick up a newspaper the next day to find out my team lost.

John Ridings of North Reading asked me if either of my parents were weightlifters. "Why do you ask, John?" "Well, I think they were," he said, "because they sure raised a dumb-bell!"

My father used to say "Love your neighbor, but don't pull down the fence!"

Scientists are now able to measure distances to a fraction of an inch by means of laser beams. Big deal — parking lot attendants have been doing it for years.

I went to the law firm of Aloisi and Aloisi in Lynnfield and asked what I could do about my wife Kathy throwing things at me. The senior member, retired Judge Salvatore Aloisi, said, "I've known you the 25 years you've been married and Kathy has thrown things all that time — why are you complaining now?" "Because," I said, "yesterday was the first time she has hit me!"

The person who can't lead and won't follow makes a dandy road block.

Any father who thinks he's all-important should remind himself that this country honors fathers only one day a year — pickles get a whole week.

Folks, success isn't how far you got, but the distance you traveled from where you started.

Hey, if you feel good, how about notifying your face?

Sign in a tailor shop: "When we get through with your custom-made suit, you will have a FIT!"

The man who brags that he never made a mistake has a wife who did.

Why rebate? Why can't an article cost "X" amount, period, without the insanity of rebate? What is the reason, purpose or rationale for it? Tell me, maybe I'm stupid.

While I'm on a roll, the biggest joke in America is "list" price. What does it mean? Not much when stores advertise 50 percent off list price.

Another thing — almost every toy I see requires batteries to run. Years ago, the Edison Co. would give bulbs away free so more electricity would be used. Maybe toys should be free, subsidized by the battery-makers.

Now to get back to my jolly self again. North Reading was host to 375 senior citizens for Thanksgiving dinner at the Hillview Country Club. Edith O'Leary and Jeff Zager presented centerpieces to Mabel Johnson and Philip Roberts for being the oldest lady and gentleman present. The lovely Edith O'Leary herself received a beautiful bouquet of red roses from Rebecca Mills, president of the Golden Age Club of North Reading.

When workers aren't there, business doesn't work.

Each year cancer strikes 120,000 people in our work force, and causes our economy to lose more than $10 billion in earnings. Earnings that American workers might still be generating if they had known the simple facts on how to protect themselves from cancer.

KOKO'S KITTEN. By Dr. Francine Patterson. Scholastic. $9.95. Unpagd. Grades 4 to 6.

Koko the gorilla was just 3 months old when Dr. Francine Patterson met her at the San Francisco Zoo.

It was 1971, and Dr. Patterson was working on her graduate thesis testing gibbons to see if they could recognize themselves in mirrors. Koko, who had been separated from the other gorillas because of an illness, needed care, and Dr. Patterson decided to see if she could teach Koko how to communicate by using the hand and body gestures of American Sign Language. Fourteen years later, Koko is indeed able to "talk," even to the point of inventing her own words. For instance, she deemed a ring a finger bracelet.

Three days before Koko's 12th birthday, Dr. Patterson asked the gorilla what she wanted as a gift. She made the sign for "cat." Shown a litter of three kittens, Koko chose a tailless tabby and said, "Love that." Then she named him All Ball.

"Koko's Kitten" documents the loving relationship that grew between the kitten and her attentive owner. When All Ball was killed by a car, Koko understood fully that her cat was gone and mourned the loss. Happily, she eventually accepted another kitten whom she named Baby.

Young readers cannot help but be fascinated by the remarkable and touching story. Ronald Cohn's engaging color photographs of Koko and All Ball document the moving relationship between the two animals.

Dr. Patterson tells Koko's story for adults in "The Education of Koko" (Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 1981).

ANDY BEAR. By Ginny Johnston and Judy Cutchins. Morrow. $13. 62 pages. Grades 4 to 6.

Ginny Johnston and Judy Cutchins' "Andy Bear" is a remarkable story about the devotion between an animal and his caretaker. Andy is a polar bear born one Christmas morning at the Atlanta Zoo. Male polar bears are known to kill their young, so zookeeper Constance Noble rescued the cub from his parents and for the next several weeks became Andy's mother.

Because so few polar bears are born in captivity, Ms. Noble had to use the trial and error method in caring for Andy. He weighed just 1 1/2 pounds at birth, so he was put in an incubator. Every hour and a half Ms. Noble fed him a formula of evaporated milk and water by squirting it into his mouth with a syringe.

When Andy was a bit older, Ms. Noble took him to her apartment and took the responsibility of raising him. There were some frightening moments. When Andy was 4 weeks old he

Original show gives locals a chance

'Hell's Bells' opens in Salem

By DOUG BOYLE

SALEM — It is not often that actors on the local level get the chance to create a role from an original play. This is an honor that is mostly offered only to established people in the Boston and New York theatre scenes.

Three actors from the Middlesex East reading area have been given the chance to perform in a show that has a possibility of going on to greater heights.

Mary Jennings, of Wilmington, Tim O'Neil, of Reading, and Joe Fraser, formerly of Wakefield, have been able to turn their talents towards creating the roles of Dee, Lovey, and Will, in the newly written "Hell's Bells" that will be opening this Friday at Theatre East in Salem.

The production is the creation of Jackie Vancelette, and is the first play written by the multi-talented person who, along with her husband David, was instrumental in saving the intimate 129 seat theatre from the wrecking ball.

Ironically the musical, which was conceived as an idea long before the Vancelette's acquired the playhouse, is about a small theatre struggling to stay alive and putting on one last show that the performers hope will save it.

This has somewhat become an autobiographical sketch, as the theatre has seen some hard times in its year and one-half of operation under the present owners.

Things are looking up for the group however as they have just come off a successful seven the role of Dee was specifically patterned for Jennings, who has worked on several productions in the theatre, however is appearing on the stage there for the first time.

Jennings experience comes talents at the playhouse since last March.

At that time, having just turned 40, Fraser made his decision to go after a dream.

"I was always one of those kids," Fraser said, "who sat in

from work that she has done in the past at Salem State College and in various community theatre groups.

The graduate of Salem State also has several other pursuits including supporting herself as a substitute teacher while she works on her writing and her theatre career.

As Jennings explained it she became interested in theatre as a result of watching her father who is active in the local community theatre groups.

At Theatre East she has been developing other skills as well.

the front row during high school, and said I want to do this."

As with all local actors Fraser has supported himself at other jobs and is presently working for the Department of Youth Services, in Middleton, at the Northeast Family Services.

Although he has just started to seriously pursue a new career, Fraser has accomplished much in the past as a painter, and playwright himself.

O'Neil, an Austin Preparatory School graduate, who received his degree from Assumption College in Wor-chester, has jumped right into going after his career as an actor.

Having done college productions including "Blithe Spirit," he comes to "Hell's Bells," from a summer of acting in the "King Richards Renaissance Fairs," held in Carver this past summer.

Of his efforts, O'Neil said, "I'm trying hard."

He has also received some directing credits for his resume having guided student reviews while in college.

Will the three actors be able to pursue their career further?

If one listens to the Vancelette's, you have to believe that the opportunity is there.

According to them, they have been approached by theatre's in Boston to bring the show to that city.

With a combination of their hard work and enthusiasm, plus the fact that many theatre owners are crying over the dearth of new material, the show may just have a chance to go on up the ladder.

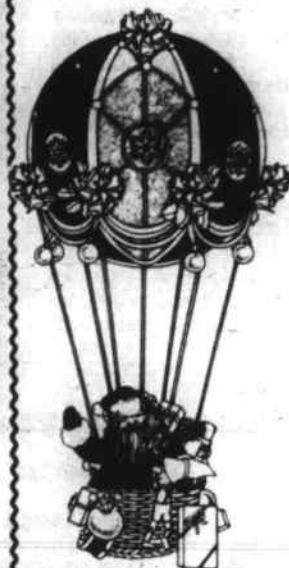

The actors share this enthusiasm as Fraser announced, "the show is going to be ready."

This was echoed by Jennings and O'Neil, who both expressed their confidence in the opening.

New England will find out this Friday night as the New England Premiere of "Hell's Bells" goes up at 8 p.m.

The Vancelette's are announcing half-price tickets for a limited preview run of the show.

Give gift of friendship this holiday season

Hanukah, Christmas and New Years are traditional times of celebration and gaiety. Shopping for gifts has begun, trees are trimmed and children queue to speak with Santa.

December tradition also holds that nearly 2,000 unfortunate people may die in a motor vehicle accident involving the use of alcohol, according to National Safety Council statistics.

To focus attention on this potentially devastating occurrence, the week of December 15-21 has been designated as the fourth annual National Drunk and Drugged Driver Awareness Week.

The Massachusetts Safety Council asks hosts and hostesses to promote this effort by using the "Designated Driver" concept at all gatherings where alcohol will be served. The number of tragic seasonal fatalities can be reduced if this act of friendship is offered along with an alcoholic beverage.

"What better gift can a person offer than an extension of their life, or more significantly, to keep them from the misery of knowing they ended someone else's life prematurely?" said Arthur D. Moriarty, President. "All that's required is for a select few to "volunteer" at the beginning of the party to drink non-alcoholic beverages and to drive the other celebrants home safely. The responsibility is rotated to other volunteers at the next party."

Cheese - an exotic taste for the holidays

For many families December means a trip back home. Children and grandchildren, often hundreds of miles away, load up the family car and return to their roots — a big farmhouse in the Vermont hill country or a small bungalow in the plains of Nebraska. It is a time of nostalgia, singing carols together, visiting seldom seen relatives and friends, skating with old college classmates, or throwing snowballs at neices and nephews who are no longer kids. Grandma has been storing goodies in her "cold room" for several weeks in anticipation of the family's reunion.

Food preparation is often in shifts to accommodate everyone. The early birds have breakfast and the sleepy heads prefer brunch. Some like plain fare while others like elegance. In France, Roquefort, the King of Cheeses, is served for breakfast, lunch, dinner and in-between-meal snacks, particularly during the holidays. There is the feast of Reveillon after midnight mass on Christmas Eve...and another feast on Christmas Day. Friends and relatives are visited during the week and then everyone celebrates the New Year with more food.

Americans tend to eat lighter meals so you will enjoy these delectable breakfast and brunch dishes with their French flair. Have you ever tried baked eggs for brunch? The secret of this easy and attractive dish is to warm the eggs. Cold eggs take too long to bake resulting in overcooked whites before the yolks are even warm. It takes warmed eggs only six minutes to bake and the presentation is so much more appealing than the traditional method used for poaching.

BAKED EGGS IN ROQUEFORT CRUST
5 slices white bread or about 3 cups commercial crumbs
1/2 stick butter, softened
1/4 cup crumbled Roquefort cheese, at room temperature
1/4 teaspoon white pepper
1 egg white, beaten until foamy
6 whole eggs

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Use a food processor to turn bread into crumbs. Spread on a cookie sheet and bake for 10 minutes. Cool. Combine crumbs, butter, cheese and pepper until mixture is crumbly. Stir into beaten egg white.

Generously grease each cup in a 6-cup muffin tin with butter. Divide the crumbs and press against the sides and bottom to form a 1/8-inch crust. Bake for 8 minutes at 375 degrees F. If desired, this preparation can be done a day before and the pan covered and held in the refrigerator. Heat in the oven for 3 minutes before using.

Cover eggs with 140 degree F. hot water (use a meat thermometer to test temperature).

Let stand for 10 minutes. Crack each egg in a baked crust. Bake the eggs for 6 minutes at 375 degrees F. The whites should be softly set and yolks runny. Carefully run a knife around each cup and transfer onto a platter. Garnish with parsley. Serve with sausages or ham.

For variety put 1 teaspoon cooked, chopped spinach, asparagus or mushrooms in the bottom of the prebaked crusts before adding the eggs.

PEAR BREAD WITH ROQUEFORT BUTTER

1/2 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 large eggs
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped pears
1/2 cup chopped walnuts or pecans

Cream butter. Gradually beat in sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, baking soda and nutmeg. Alternately add dry ingredients with the buttermilk. Stir in vanilla, pears and nuts. Pour into a greased 8-1/2x4-1/2x2-1/2-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour. Cool, slice and serve with Roquefort Butter. Note: Chopped apples may be substituted.

ROQUEFORT BUTTER

1/4 pound Roquefort cheese, at room temperature
1/4 pound soft butter or margarine

Thoroughly blend cheese and butter. Shape into a roll on waxed paper. Refrigerate until ready to use. Slice as desired.

ROQUEFORT-LIVERWURST SPREAD

1/2 pound liverwurst
3 ozs. ricotta or cream cheese
3 ozs. crumbled Roquefort cheese

1/3 cup light cream
2 tablespoons dry sherry
Garlic, salt and pepper, to taste

Cream together all of the ingredients. Chill overnight to blend flavors. Serve on thinly sliced rye or pumpernickel breads.

Once again the season to be jolly approaches. Soon Hanukkah and Christmas, with their special magic for young and old alike, will arrive. The house will be decorated, the candles lit and for many, a cheerfully crackling fire will fill the rooms with the scent of pine.

There are office parties to go to, a holiday open house or an informal get-together for a few close friends. No matter what the occasion is, some appetizing morsels of food are always in order.

Remember back when cheese and crackers would do? Now that we have become culinary sophisticates it is fun to try new party starters that can be made with a minimum of fuss. One that has been around for centuries, but little known outside of large cities in this country, is feta cheese produced from pure sheep's milk. The farmers in the mountainous region where the famous Roquefort cheese is made in France also supply sheep's milk for feta.

French feta is a semi-soft cheese, rich in protein, with a mellow flavor that leaves no aftertaste. It is available in 7 ounce cryovac packages and 2 pound blocks. Try it cut in small cubes served with assorted olives and a glass of wine. An interesting ethnic party food is the Middle Eastern dip or spread called Hummus Bi Tahini. For those who like a piquant appetizer there is Chicken Ole Feta with its tomato and chili tang served in a slice of zucchini or peeled cucumber. Deep Fried Feta is wonderful dipped in either of the suggested cottage cheese-sour cream blends. Most important of all is for you to relax and enjoy yourself at your own party!

FRENCH FETA-CHICK PEASEAME PUREE

(Hummus Bi Tahini)
1 15-1/2 oz. can cooked chick peas (garbanzo beans), drained. Reserve the liquid.
1 pkg. 7 oz. French feta cheese
1/2 cup minced parsley
Green onions or scallions to measure 1/4 cup white onions. Slice green onion tops.
1 large garlic clove, peeled and minced
3 tablespoons sesame seeds
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1-2 teaspoons olive oil
1/8 teaspoon oregano
Pinch of cumin
Pinch of Hungarian sweet paprika

Mash the French feta and chick peas into a thick paste with a potato masher or in a food processor. Mince the parsley, garlic and onion. Set aside sliced green onion tops. Sauté the sesame seeds in vegetable oil in a heavy skillet. Shake the pan frequently as the seeds burn very easily. Remove the seeds.

Layered look is in for the practical dresser

It may have begun in a hunting lodge in the Yukon or perhaps in an igloo in Alaska. Somewhere, no one knows for certain, the idea of layering clothing for warmth was discovered.

But the modern principal of layering clothing for fashion is coming from Italy. This trend has zoomed across the Atlantic hitting America with a bi-coastal, one-two punch.

In New York, men are looking for ways to loosen up and personalize the traditional dress mold cast by Wall Street. In Los Angeles, where men have been more relaxed about their clothes for years, layering lightweight clothes achieves elegance, without forfeiting the California casual look. On both sides of the nation and in between, the high casual look of layering clothes is big fashion news.

"American men are becoming more savvy. Instead of meat and potatoes, it's salads and sushi. They are permitting themselves to expand, to try new options, and this includes the clothes they wear," says Tom Gurtner, manager of menswear fashion services for The Wool Bureau. "They've learned the laws of classic dressing; now they're learning about style."

"Layering can mean more than throwing a sweater over the shoulders of a button-down with a polo shirt underneath," he adds. "It means layering sweaters over sweaters, short jackets over long skirts, jackets over jackets and even mixing fashion looks — a sport jacket over a sweat suit, a sport shirt over a shirt and tie."

The traditional men's wardrobe, however, can be a good basis for developing a layered look, says Gurtner. Lightweight worsted wools, long a favorite for men's transseasonal suits, are now available in a variety of separates. Many of these garments are softly tailored without a lining, making them especially comfortable. They layer beautifully, and since wool breathes (evaporating moisture away from the skin) the layers don't become excessively hot and uncomfortable.

How does a novice learn to create the layered look, without spending a fortune?

"Start with something you already own, like a tweed overcoat or a wool blazer," advises Gurtner. "Find a cropped jacket or a sweater to complement it."

Learning to make the most of fabrics and textures is an important step in achieving this comfortable and sophisticated look. With rough tweeds and donals, blend in soft, rich wools such as merino or lambswool. A wool flannel blazer, the most basic element in a man's wardrobe, can be layered with heavier or lighter fabrics. A shirt with a piece of knitwear (pullover or cardigan) underneath, a tweed overjacket on top. And the newest look will have all the items in close-order color.

"Designers are working more with monochromatic color schemes this year," says Gurtner. "Dark shirts with dark jackets, ties, trousers and hosiery, all in varying shades and patterns of the same color make the layering and textures stand out."

Neutral color schemes, in oatmeals, creams and beiges, are also big fashion news this season.

Layering allows men to look elegant and sophisticated, and still feel casual and comfortable. "Men do not have to be stiff and starched to be well dressed," says Gurtner. "Whether it's the glass of fashion or the blue-plate special, the result should be light, lively and easy to digest."

Geographic Facts

Salt Lake City and Reno were 200 to 300 miles closer together 15 million years ago than they are today, because Earth's crust is thinning and stretching in that region, says National Geographic.

Natural pearls are so rare that thousands of oysters must be collected to produce only a handful of gems, says National Geographic. An Australian pearl farmer once brought up 100 tons of shells for mother-of-pearl sales without finding a single natural pearl worth $100.

Although polygamy is allowed in primarily Muslim Senegal, before marriage the groom must declare his intention to be either monogamous or polygamous, National Geographic reports. Once made, the decision is irrevocable.

The firehouse in Livermore, Calif., has a light bulb that has burned since 1901, says National Geographic World. The life of an average bulb is 750 to 1,000 hours.

POINSETTIA

Flower of the Holy Night

The Poinsettia, best known as our traditional Christmas decoration and centerpiece is really fairly new to this country. It wasn't until 1828 that Joel Robert Poinsett, the first United States ambassador to Mexico, introduced it to America. But the association with Christmas actually started much earlier.

Legend tells of a small Mexican village offering gifts to a crèche one Christmas Eve. A small boy, having nothing to give, knelt outside to pray. Where the boy had knelt immediately grew a beautiful plant with brilliant scarlet flowers. And thus the poinsettia became known as the Flower of the Holy Night.

At Mahoney's we've been raising our very own unique crop of The Flower of the Holy Night for over a decade. We have more than 30 greenhouses specially designed to meet the demanding and exacting procedure required to yield over 70,000 of New England's most beautiful poinsettias every year.

Our poinsettias are propagated from a special variety of cutting. They produce a heartier plant with brilliant longer-lasting flowers (bracts). You can choose red, white, pink, or a single pot with a combination of all three.

We carefully regulate the growth of our poinsettias to keep them from becoming too tall. By doing this the plant concentrates its energy on developing many more flowers and a denser, deep green foliage. You'll immediately see the difference. They're rounder, fuller and more healthy looking and make for more beautiful gifts and more graceful centerpieces.

Rounder, fuller, more healthy looking with more flowers and dense, deep green foliage.

Each poinsettia comes with an informative care sheet and, for no extra charge, you can have your poinsettia wrapped in the traditional red or green foil, or placed in a handsome basket.

Raising the most beautiful poinsettia is very demanding but, when you grow 70,000 of them each year, you become very good at it.

Klezmer Band in Andover

The Klezmer Conservatory Band, the jazz/folk/ragtime-flavored ensemble of 15 musicians will present their unique and creative interpretations of the traditional Klezmer and Yiddish music at Andover's J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts on Dec. 14 at 8 p.m.

Klezmer is Yiddish for the "wandering musicians," who traveled and played in the eastern European ghettos. The music was brought to America early in this century but soon faded because of the immigrant Jews' desire to appear American. Today, however, the sounds of Klezmer play a prominent role in the world of ethnic music.

Hankus Netsky founded the Klezmer Conservatory of Music ten years ago. At that time he was teaching ethnic music and his studies fueled his curiosity about his own heritage. He soon discovered that both a grandfather and an uncle were in the Philadelphia Klezmer orchestras in the 20s and 30s. He then decided to carry on his ancestors' tradition. Today, the Klezmer revival band is in full swing.

Since its inception, KCB has re-introduced a music with a one-thousand year heritage, performing concerts nationwide. The band has released two records, "Yiddishe Renaissance," and "Klez," and has been featured on "Tourists," a live album released by the popular radio program, "A Prairie Home Companion."

For the uninitiated Klezmer music sounds like a strange mix of ragtime, folk, pop, and jazz. The traditional Jewish music pours jumps, weeps, walls, bounces, and flows from a variety of horn and string instruments. The music is unique in its sound: intelligent, silly, and powerful.

The Boston-based troupe represent a number of Jewish and non-Jewish origins. Their rousing spirit and exceptional musicianship is their common bond. Classically trained, many with jazz backgrounds, each player is a soloist and virtuoso.

All audiences who love to have a good time and who look for creativity in music will enjoy the experience of Klezmer Conservatory Band's joyous and infectious brand of instrumental and vocal music.

The Klezmer Conservatory Band sponsored in part by Academy Manor Nursing Home, Andover, in performance at the J. Everett Collins Center for the performing Arts in Andover, Mass., Saturday, Dec. 14 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $12 and $10, available at the Collins Center box office, Shawsheen Road, off Rts. 133 and 93 in Andover. For information or to charge tickets, phone (617) 470-1905.

Safety tips on guns

The success of the U.S. Olympic Shooting Team during the 1984 Olympics increased interest among young people in shooting sports. As a result, guns have become a popular Christmas item.

Green is the in color for 1985

The color palette in home textiles for 1985 is sophisticated and contemporary—but not so sophisticated that every color is muted, and not so contemporary that every color is garish. Rather, the key for 1985 is moderation. Colors like green return as Emerald Sea to complement the popular furniture fashions resurrected from the 19th century while colors like Lollipop Red satisfy the tastes of those who "like it hot," explains Mary Williams. When combined and coordinated in the same house, these colors create a balance that relaxes the eye without being dull.

Most colors this year will be midtones. Neutrals are important and numerous, while bright, clear shades add sprak to the spectrum. Red-tinted shades will continue this year, but they will be joined by colors with definite blue and green influences. The sharp contrasts of '84 will soften as black becomes graphite and grey turns into taupe. Bright white continues, but the most influential neutral is ivory. The brown family will develop yellow tones reminiscent of sandalwood and of the Sahara. The green family will become silvery, turning out colors like willow and frosted mint.

The National Rifle Association strongly encourages parents intending to introduce their youngsters to recreational shooting to follow these safety tips on Christmas Day.

Contact your local gun club or the National Rifle Association and make arrangements for your youngster to attend a basic gun safety handling course as soon after Christmas day as possible.

Include a variety of safety brochures and books along with the new gun and, together with your youngster, carefully read through the information. Set aside time to discuss safety and responsible gun ownership. Clearly define the conditions under which the gun may be handled and fired.

Refrain from buying BBs or other ammunition until your youngster has attended a basic firearm safety course.

After the gun has been unwrapped and whenever you handle it, always: 1) Keep the muzzle pointed in a safe direction; 2) Keep your finger off the trigger; 3) Keep the action open and unloaded; 4) Treat every gun as if it is loaded.

Training programs, brochures, books and the parents personal involvement are all effective ways of educating the junior shooter on the importance of handling his or her newest Christmas present with respect.

For further information about gun safety programs contact the Education and Training Department, 1600 Rhode Island Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 or phone (202) 828-6280.

Getting through the holidays in good cheer

LOWER YOUR EXPECTATIONS - Your Christmas cookies are famous, but it really is okay if you buy them this year. Say No to unnecessary projects. Don't set demanding goals for yourself to make all your gifts. If you wish, consider other ways for keeping your gift-giving economical. For example, some families draw names so each person does not have to buy for everyone.

SET PRIORITIES - Deliberately sort out what (1) must be done; (2) is important but not urgent; (3) can be postponed until after the holidays. Remember, people can't criticize what they can't see, and a multitude of sins can be hidden behind closed doors in the private areas of your house.

SHARE THE LOAD - AND SPEAK UP ABOUT IT - Don't wait in frustration for someone to offer to help. Though it may be obvious to you what is needed, ask people: "Can you bring dessert?" "Which afternoon did you say you could take care of Freddie so that I can shop?"

TAKE A BREAK - Every day, however briefly, make sure you get a break. By that I mean getting off your feet and doing nothing. I do not mean crocheting your gifts while you wait for the oven buzzer to ring. A half hour off is not going to change the total amount you get done in a day.

CHANGE TRADITIONS - Arrange things to suit your present circumstances. Just because something has "always been done this way" doesn't mean it has to be. This may be the first year you want to stay home and let people come to you. On the other hand, you may not want to prepare for having company, and prefer to go to someone else's house.

PLAN ACTIVITIES THAT ARE AGE APPROPRIATE FOR YOUR CHILD - Don't be pressured into events which you can see will be an ordeal. Many strenuous and stimulating events will be better enjoyed when your child is older.

DON'T TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THINGS YOU

CAN'T CONTROL - Bad weather, irritable children, influenza, and family conflicts with a history of three generations can not be "fixed" by you to make this event perfect.

DON'T TRY TO BE "UP" ALL THE TIME - Trying to be jolly for the whole season is quite a strain. Most people go through a whole range of feelings including some bad days. Don't think you're "spilling everything" if you're not consistently cheerful. People who care will understand.

Cheese

Saute the minced white onion, garlic and parsley; blend with 2 tablespoons sesame seeds into the chick pea paste. Add lemon juice, oregano and enough chick pea liquid to obtain the desired consistency. Salt to taste. Place the paste in the center of a shallow serving dish. Drizzle the surface with olive oil. Sprinkle with cumin, paprika and the remaining tablespoon of toasted sesame seeds. Spoon the sliced green onion tops around the base of the puree. Serve with chips, crackers or warm pita bread. Makes about 2 1/2 cups.

CHICKEN OLE FETA SPREAD

3 cups minced, cooked chicken, about 3/4 pound
2 pkgs. (7 oz. each) French feta cheese, at room temperature
1 finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup tomato juice
3 peeled, minced green chiles
1/8 teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoons minced parsley
3 tablespoons diced pimiento
Zucchini or cucumbers

Combine the chicken and French feta together in a mixer or food processor. Sauté the onion in butter. Add tomato juice, chiles, thyme and cayenne. Blend with the chicken and feta mixture. Add additional tomato juice, chiles and seasoning, if desired. Stir in parsley and pimiento. Spread on crackers or serve in hollowed out slices of zucchini or cucumber. Makes about 3 cups.

DEEP FRIED FRENCH FETA

Cut French feta cheese into uniform pieces not thicker than 2 inches. Pat the outside surfaces between absorbent paper to remove the moisture. Prepare three shallow bowls for dipping. One should contain flour seasoned with powdered onion, garlic or a spice combination of your choice. The second bowl is for slightly beaten eggs diluted with 2 teaspoons milk or water per egg. Stir together but not so vigorously that the mixture becomes bubbly. In the last bowl put fine cracker crumbs. Flour each piece of feta cheese, patting gently. Slide them, one at a time, into the egg mixture making sure the entire surface is moistened. Allow any extra moisture to drip off.

Place the cheese in the cracker crumbs. Don't pat on extra crumbs because they are likely to fall off and burn in the frying oil. Handle the cheese gently so the coating doesn't crack. Dry on a rack for about 20 minutes before frying.

Fry a little at a time in vegetable oil heated to 375 degrees F. Remove with a slotted spoon. After each batch let the temperature return to 375 degrees F.

DIPS
Mix together a simple dip of 2 cups cottage cheese, 2-3 tablespoons of sour cream, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1/4 teaspoon grated onion and either garlic powder or chili sauce. Blend until smooth.

An alternate combination is the same amount of cottage cheese, sour cream and lemon juice blended with whole berry cranberry sauce until smooth. Makes about 2 1/4 cups.

"LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL"
A word about our business philosophy: We feel there are three key ingredients that make a fun time. The Disc Jockey, the music and most important of all - you! At our company we try never to lose sight of this fact and our years of experience have taught us that when you do a good job you'll be rewarded with new business. Yes, price is important but as with all things in life it certainly shouldn't be the deciding factor. While we possess some of the most modern equipment available including lights etc., it's really the music that makes the night, which is one reason we do not use pre-recorded tapes or other props - just records, literally thousands at your disposal. Our musical format includes songs from the 20's right up to today's hits. Naturally references are available and we've been critically acclaimed in Boston Globe Magazine and you'll also find us in Boston Magazine as well as local publications. By the way, no party is too large or small, we do them all - from a houseful to a hall-full. We are also the wedding specialists. So there you have it. Great music and good times. Isn't that what your next function should be? "Let the Good Times Roll". We play the music of your life. Call Paul Lazzara at 944-4617. You'll be glad you did!
